

Reserve Board Is Summoned to Talk About Interest Hike

Senate-House Committee Calls Hearings for Monday

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate-House Economic Committee has summoned the entire seven-member Federal Reserve Board to discuss the board's hike in interest rates.

Chairman Wright Patman, D-Tex., said the hearings would open next Monday.

Patman said committee members with whom he had talked agreed the Federal Reserve action "could have a substantial impact on the health of our economy and upon the formulation of fiscal and other government economic policies in the months ahead."

Little immediate effect can be expected because most financing is planned well ahead of building projects.

Corporations Spending

A government report, based on a survey completed before Sunday's Federal Reserve Board action, said Tuesday that corporations have been spending at a steadily increasing pace to meet increased consumer demands, and that another sharp increase is expected next year.

Businesses will spend some $900 million more on new plants and equipment this year than previously expected, the survey indicated, with outlays rising to $51.8 billion compared with the $50.9 billion estimate made in September.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, in a speech Tuesday before the Institute of Life Insurance in New York, joined President Johnson in regretting that the Federal Reserve decision was made "before it was possible to give full consideration to the January budget decisions and to the economic outlook for private spending in 1966."

The federal reserve action comprised two main steps: a raise in the rate on time deposits of more than 30 days to 5 1/2 from 4 1/2 per cent, and an increase to 4 1/2 from 4 per cent.

Joint Chiefs to Meet at Ranch To Talk Budgets

Conference Slated After Session With Rusk, McNamara

By FRANK CORMIER

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson's latest search for ways to provide more men, equipment and money for the war in Viet Nam will reach a new stage Saturday with the Joint Chiefs of Staff given a say-so in vital budget decisions.

Johnson conferred for more than seven hours at his ranch home Tuesday with Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

Among other things, the Texas White House said, the officials "studied various budgetary matters affecting the national security preliminary to a session the President will have Saturday morning on the defense budget" with the Joint Chiefs, McNamara and Deputy Secretary of Defense Cyrus R. Vance.

Manpower Views This meeting presumably will give the Pentagon's uniformed chiefs a chance to give Johnson their views on the manpower, weapons and money they regard as essential.

Traditionally, the uniformed services seek more funds and larger programs than the President finally approves. The budgetary pinch on some programs may be particularly acute this year because of Johnson's desire to offset, as much as possible, the mounting cost of operations in Viet Nam.

The President's ranch meeting with Rusk and McNamara was described as intensive. In addition to a preliminary discussion of the defense budget that will go to Congress next month, Johnson got a firsthand report from McNamara "on the status of operations in South Viet Nam." McNamara spent 28 hours in Saigon last week, getting briefed by top officials on the scene.

Sitting in on the session were McGeorge Bundy, Johnson's special assistant for national security affairs, and Robert Komer, Bundy's deputy.

Hale, Hearty Spacemen Spin Into Fifth Day

Gemini 6 Trip Not Likely Now Before Monday

SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — The Gemini 7 astronauts, hearty and healthy after nearly four days in space, streaked on toward a record two weeks today while Gemini 6 planned a crucial ground rehearsal for next week's attempt to rendezvous the two high in the sky.

Air Force Lt. Col. Frank Borman and Navy Cmdr. James A. Lovell Jr. passed the 1 1/2-million-mile mark of their daring journey early today with their four-ton spacecraft working like a charm.

Space agency officials weren't sure whether Gemini 6 would get off the ground Sunday or Monday. A computer problem in the spacecraft considerably reduced the chances of a Sunday launching.

Monday Likely

Officials said Monday was a more likely target date. If there are additional troubles, Gemini 6 could be launched as late as Friday, Dec. 17.

The computer's electronic memory became scrambled during a test at Cape Kennedy Tuesday and the instrument had to be replaced. This delayed the start of the Gemini 6 rehearsal at least 17 hours—until 5 p.m. (EST) today at the earliest.

The Gemini 6 astronauts, Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr. and Air Force Maj. Thomas P. Stafford, will need the computer to calculate their intricate orbit-shifting maneuvers during the planned 103,000-mile pursuit of Gemini 6.

The two pairs of astronauts hope to fly in formation, perhaps only inches apart, for about six hours.

Borman and Lovell shifted Gemini 7's orbital course Tuesday in a step toward a desired orbit for the rendezvous. Command pilot Borman fired jet thrusters to increase their speed by eight miles an hour and raised the low point of their path from 138 to 146 miles above the earth. The high point remained at 197 miles.

Alter Course

Later, they will alter course so both the high and low points are 185 miles. It is at this altitude that Gemini 6 hopes to

Vietnamese Ranger Battalion Wiped Out by Viet Cong

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — A strong Viet Cong force encircled and virtually destroyed an elite South Vietnamese ranger battalion today near the coastal town of Tam Ky, 350 miles northeast of Saigon.

The Communists struck from all sides, inflicting heavy casualties on the Vietnamese troops as well as their American advisers. Between 30 and 50 wounded Vietnamese rangers were lifted out of the battle area by helicopter.

The attack broke a two-day lull in the ground action and came after a Viet Cong offer to call off the war for 12 hours starting Christmas Eve "to allow people on the other side to celebrate Christmas in peace."

Crack Unit

Although security regulations prevented identification of the ranger unit, it was described as one of the best in the South Vietnamese army and had been a veteran of heavy combat. The battle erupted near Route 1, the vital north-south coastal highway.

A Vietnamese battalion usually numbers about 500 men.

U.S. air attacks continued unabated over North and South Viet Nam. Bridges and roads around Dien Bien Phu were attacked.

A U.S. Marine F4 Phantom jet with two men aboard was reported downed on an escort mission over North Viet Nam. The fate of the pilot and his observer was not known.

Supply Lines

Some 20 F105 Thunderchief jets hit Communist supply lines near Dien Bien Phu, scene of the great French defeat 11 years ago. In the South, other planes drove off an unknown number of black pajama-clad Viet Cong harassing a government outpost 15 miles northwest of Rach Gia, a town in southwest Viet Nam. Three guerrillas were reported killed.

U.S. military headquarters reported another decline in weekly American casualties with 19 Americans killed, 161

Bundy Quits Johnson Post

Will Become Head Of Ford Foundation, Moyers Reports

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — The Texas White House announced today the resignation of McGeorge Bundy as President Johnson's special assistant for national security affairs.

The future of the job was left cloudy. Bundy, 46, will leave the White House staff Feb. 28 to become president of the Ford Foundation at a reported salary of $75,000 a year. His present salary is $28,500 a year.

Press secretary Bill D. Moyers, in announcing Bundy's forthcoming departure, said Johnson sent Bundy a handwritten note today accepting the resignation "with genuine regret."

Potent Forces

Moyers emphasized that Johnson has nearly three months in which to decide what to do with the position Bundy filled. The job became a potent force in government when the former Harvard College dean was named to it in 1961 by President John F. Kennedy.

Asked repeatedly whether Bundy would be replaced, Moyers kept reiterating that Johnson has ample time in which to weigh the future of the position.

There has been speculation that Johnson may leave the post unfilled, and rely more directly on the State Department.

Space Center Busy With Apollo Tests, Too

SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — Not all the work at the mammoth space center is geared to the Gemini 7 astronauts.

Conflict Makes Talks Impossible

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Alexei N. Kosygin has accused the United States of whipping up war tensions, arming West Germany against the Soviet Union and killing defenseless people in Viet Nam.

In a restatement of recent Soviet comments on foreign affairs, Kosygin said Soviet leaders could not meet with President Johnson so long as the war in Viet Nam continues.

Kosygin's remarks, reported today by the official Soviet news agency Tass, were made Monday in an interview with James Reston, an associate editor of the New York Times.

It was the third interview Kosygin has given to a foreign journalist since he succeeded Premier Nikita Khrushchev in October 1964. A Turkish journalist and a British newspaper owner saw him earlier.

War Threat

Kosygin concluded the interview with an expression of hope that war would not hang over the world — after earlier accusing the United States of "creating an atmosphere conducive to war" in Europe.

"We do not want tension built up in any part of the world," Kosygin said. "We want to bend every effort in every part of the world to achieve these ends."

To this effect, the United States is the principal barrier.

"We could have the best possible relations with the American people. We value the American people's wisdom, talents and abilities — all their achievements. We are ready to learn from them to develop technology and science, and to organize production."

This kind of statement is seldom heard publicly in the Soviet Union and was not immediately published here. The rest of Kosygin's remarks followed lines made familiar by Pravda editorials denouncing the United States.

War's Shadow

Kosygin said Viet Nam overshadowed relations between Moscow and Washington.

"In South Viet Nam there is a national liberation war," he said. "These people do not want to be governed by United States puppets."

"If you continue to fight there, the people will go on rising up against oppression, for their freedom and independence."

Kosygin accused the United States of "lining up people and gunning them down." He added: "You say this is your doctrine of peace?"

"I cannot agree that you have the right to kill defenseless people. That is the doctrine of the right of the strong to kill the weak, that is what you are doing. All over the world the United States is trying to seek its ends by military means."

"Everywhere, the United

Change Was Expected

Pope Ends Council Without Lifting Friday Meat Ban

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI closed the ecumenical council today without the expected announcements that he would lift the ban on Roman Catholics eating meat on Fridays.

Sources here had been expecting that by today the Pope might announce a change in the regulations.

The sources said the pontiff was preparing a document taking the Friday abstinence from meat out of the area of Church discipline, and they had expected it either at Tuesday's ceremony for proclaiming the last four council decrees or at today's formal closing ceremony.

Pope Paul sounded out the views of his bishops on fast and abstinence last month, during a recess in council deliberations. There was no indication how soon papal action on the Friday meat ban might come.

Final Words

His final words closing the three-year council were "Ite in pace"—Go in peace.

The great clock on the facade of St. Peter's Basilica showed 1:25 p.m. (7:25 a.m. EST) as the end came to the assembly which the Pope declared was the greatest in the history of the Church.

More than 100,000 Romans and pilgrims thronged St. Peter's Square for the outdoor ceremonies ending the council which Pope John XXIII had opened on Oct. 11, 1962.

Princes, government heads, foreign ministers and other dignitaries from nearly 100 nations watched as the 2,300 bishops moved in procession from the Apostolic Palace across the square to the steps of St. Peter's Basilica.

After them came Pope Paul on his portable throne.

The Vatican published a papal brief formally closing the council and declaring it the greatest of the 21 general assemblies of the Church. It said all Roman Catholics were bound to accept its decisions, which ushered in a new era for the Church of reform within and

Headon Collision

4 Persons Killed in Crash at Wheeler

WHEELER, Wis. (AP) — Four persons, including three prominent northwestern Wisconsin farmers on their way to a meeting, were killed Tuesday night and another man was injured critically when two cars collided in the center of a highway in good weather.

The victims were Jacob W. Wiste, 63, of Barron, driver of one car, and two of his passengers—Shirley E. Bjerke, 34, Route 1, Weyerhaeuser, and Lionel K. Ellefson, 45, Route 1, Dallas; and Mrs. Kenneth Mittelstadt, 23, of Route 1, Wheeler, who was alone in the other vehicle. Another of Wiste's passengers, Harold Moen, 52, of Wheeler, was taken to Miller Hospital in St. Paul in critical condition.

Town Chairman Wiste was chairman of the town of Arland and a member of the Barron County Board of Supervisors; Ellefson was chairman of the town of Dallas and also a member of the Barron County Board. All four men were prominent farmers in their respective areas.

Relatives said that Wiste had picked up Moen about 8:15 p.m. and that all four were going to attend a meeting of the Barron County Co-op. Dunn County traffic headquarters got its first call on the crash at 8:27 p.m. The site is about five miles from the Moen home. Officers said the Wiste car was equipped with seat belts but none of the four men was using one.

Mrs. Mittelstadt, mother of one child, was on her way from Wheeler to her rural home. Her 1953 model auto was not equipped with seat belts.

Other Deaths

Wisconsin's 1965 traffic toll moved closer to the 1,000 mark with two more deaths reported today, raising the total for the year to 956. On this date last year 1,003 highway fatalities had been recorded.

Charles Bozinski, 47, of Superior was killed in a collision involving a car and a bus Tuesday night. He was a passenger in an automobile that rammed the rear of a Duluth - Superior Transit bus in South Superior.

The driver of the car, Ray Landman, 43, St. Paul, Minn., and a bus passenger, Betty Stannard, 58, Superior were hospitalized. Stephen D. Cremer, 13, Sun Prairie, died in a Madison hospital Tuesday night of injuries suffered earlier in the day when he was hit by a car while riding his bicycle on Highway 151 near Sun Prairie.

Sharks Delivered by Caesarean Section

BRANDENTON, Fla. (AP) — A Bradenton doctor has removed 10 live embryo sharks from their 11-foot, 600-pound mother after a pier-side operation with a skindiver's knife.

The shark, found on a trap-line by a fishing pier owner, was killed after the surgery. The 10 offspring were reported well and jumping.

Landlocked Mongolia Trying to Catch Up With Rest of World

Home of Genghis Khan Caught In Fight Between Moscow, Peking

By JOHN BEST
Canadian Press Writer
ULAN BATOR, Mongolia (AP) — Mongolia, a landlocked country sandwiched between the Soviet Union and China, is trying desperately to catch up with a world which once trembled at the feet of its most famous son, Genghis Khan.

Not long ago it was a feudal realm of lamas and princes, loosely tied to China. Today, 44 years after communism took over, it is caught in the middle of the struggle between Red China and the U.S.S.R.

Where once the two giants appeared to cooperate in Mongolia, they now compete for influence. At the moment the Soviet Union appears far ahead, but some in Mongolia are not happy about the satellite status this has imposed on their country. And the Chinese have not altogether vacated the arena.

Moscow Line
The present government of the Mongolian People's Republic — commonly known as Outer Mongolia — under Umezhaig Tsendal, the premier and first Communist party secretary, has gone down the line with Moscow. Domestically it has allowed Soviet economic and cultural influences to flourish while apparently merely tolerating a limited amount of Chinese influence.

This policy is by no means universally popular. Many Mongolians, including some in high places, are disturbed that the government has been burning its bridges.

End of Misgivings
At a tense, noisy meeting of the party's Central Committee last December, a number of speakers attacked government policies and demanded Tsendal's resignation. He put down the revolt and three officials regarded as promising candidates for future high office were expelled from the party.

Nobody here believes Tsendal's victory necessarily means

Indiana Youth Held In Calumet Jail for Driving Minus Consent

CHILTON — Police Chief Daniel Albeydyl said today that David Serrato, 17, Gary, Ind., is being held in the Calumet County jail on charges of driving without owner's consent. His juvenile standing has been waived by the court.

The youth allegedly took an auto from the Higgins Chevrolet garage early Saturday morning which was later found abandoned in Fond du Lac.

According to Albeydyl, it is believed that after this car ran out of gas in Fond du Lac, Serrato took another vehicle which he drove to Oshkosh.

He was apprehended after he went through a stop sign in Oshkosh. Albeydyl then went to Oshkosh to return him to Calumet County.

With further investigation pending, arraignment has been set for 10 a.m. Monday.

Freight Cars Ordered

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Pennsylvania Railroad says it had ordered 2,064 additional freight cars at a total cost of $11.6 million.

the end of popular misgivings about his pro-Soviet policy.

A little more than a month after the rebellion, a Soviet delegation headed by a party Presidium member, Alexander N. Shelepin, came to Mongolia. It is believed Shelepin told the premier the Kremlin expected him to act decisively against any challenge to Moscow's position there.

Close collaboration with Moscow undoubtedly yielded dividends. In the next five-year plan it is estimated Mongolia will receive more than $700 million worth of aid from Moscow, a remarkable amount for a country of only a million.

Nomadic Herdsmen

This traditionally has been a land of nomadic herdsmen. Its livestock — sheep, goats, cattle, horses, camels — outnumber its people 23-1. But while much of the nation's limited resources go into rural development, even more is being plowed now into industry.

Probably less than 30 per cent of the Mongolians are urban dwellers. Most of these live in Ulan Bator, a city of 200,000 whose name means "Red Hero."

About 60 per cent of the capital's people still live in yurts, tent-like dwellings similar to those of the herdsmen. These are scattered throughout the city in pockets, often surrounded by fences which seem intended to banish the thought that the yurts are there at all.

European Magazines

On the streets, well-dressed young men and women walk briskly past sage-like figures in the belted robes of the ancient Mongols. Soviet cars and trucks have the wide streets almost to themselves. Soviet movies flood in. Russian books are everywhere in bookstores. Russian and East European magazines are sold on newsstands.

Outside the capital is a different world. Within a few miles you see bush-tailed horses galloping across rolling plains, ridden by men with wide, crimson faces and high cheekbones. They look as though they had just returned from a campaign with the ancient warrior-conqueror Genghis Khan.

Except for a single hard-surface route running north and south from the capital for 95 miles, few roads are worthy of the name. Overland transport is by primitive tracks which bend and twist around the mountain slopes or across river beds, disappearing in open fields.

Soviet Trade

About 80 per cent of Mongolia's foreign trade is with the Soviet Union. While submitting to massive Soviet economic and cultural penetration, Mongolia is making an obvious effort to contain Chinese influence. One reason is the country's wholehearted commitment to Moscow in the Soviet-Chinese quarrel.

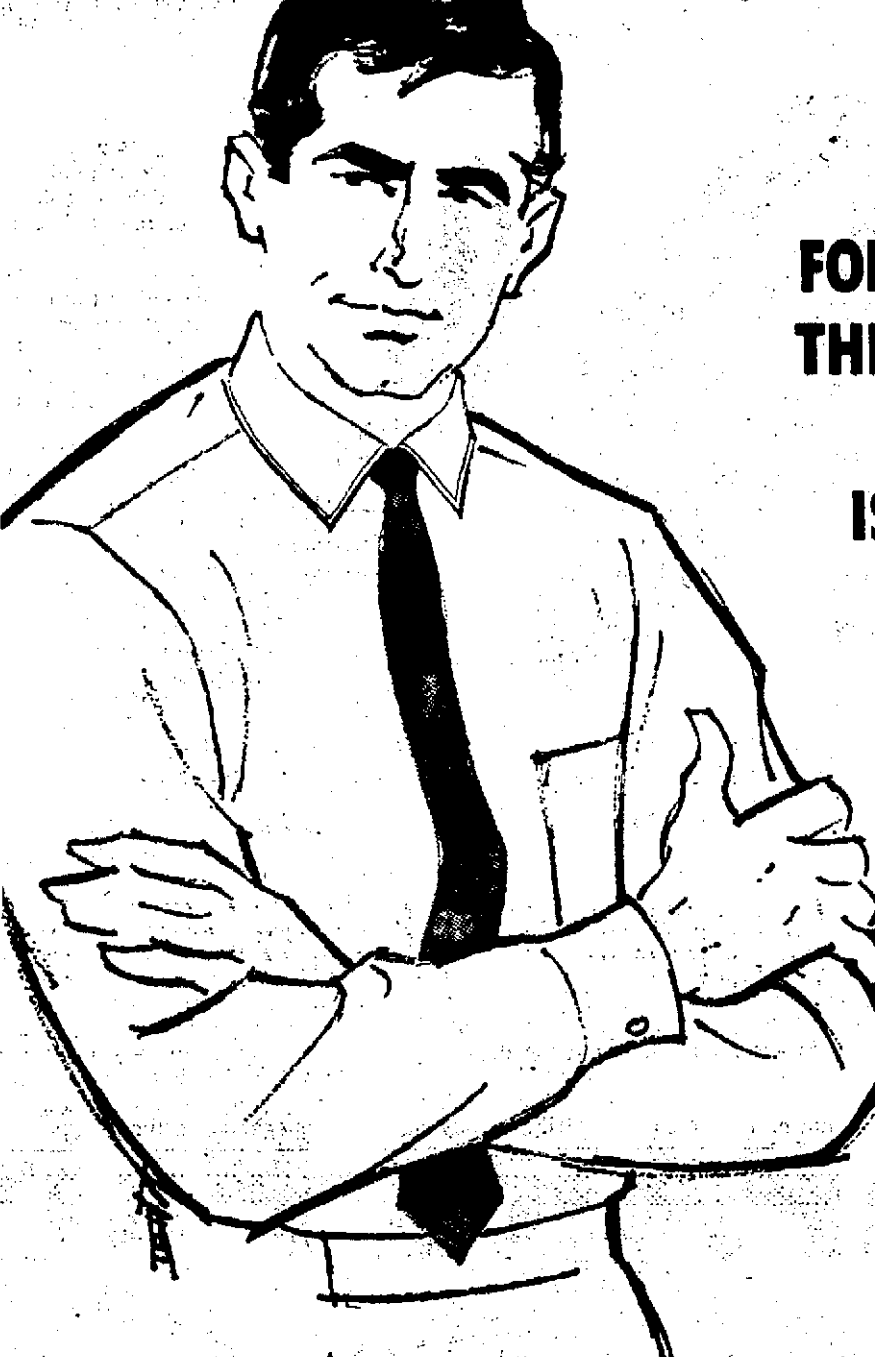

"There isn't a Mongolian who doesn't fear China for historical reasons," says an informed Western observer.

While pursuing pro-Soviet policies, however, Mongolia shows increasing interest in developing relations with the outside world. Mongolia has diplomatic relations with about 30 countries but except for the Communist nations only one has established a diplomatic mission here — Britain.

States is lending its support to the colonialists, to the side of the oppressors, not the oppressed.

Growing Hatred

"Your policy of support for colonialism will cause the people to rise up against the United States. There is a growing feeling of hatred for the United States policies because of your support for the colonialists and oppressors."

The next few years will set the pattern for the next 10 to 15 years, Kosygin said.

"One prospect is for an arms race and an increase in military budgets. It is the United States which is setting the military tone and whipping up a military psychosis. It is of your doing, this generation of tensions in the world."

Kosygin said the European situation was an example of U.S. efforts "to build up tensions, to create an atmosphere conducive to war."

One Camp

"You want to create the multilateral force, the Atlantic nuclear force and the McNamara committee," he went on. "But these only result in uniting the forces of one camp."

"Any unification of forces in that camp must be directed against us. It compels us to muster our own forces and react to what you do."

"We are against this concept, but it is very strong in the United States and we have to take it into account in thinking 10 or 15 years ahead."

"The fact is that the United States is increasing its military budget, announced Tuesday, was made 'against our own wishes because of U.S. policies.'"

The premier said serious concern is caused by "the fact that atomic weapons are deployed in West Germany."

Germans Trained

"They (the West Germans) have trained personnel, delivery vehicles, all that is necessary to start a nuclear war," he said. "They have achieved all this with American assistance. The West Germans have built an army of 500,000 men with U.S. help."

"Why are you arming West Germany and setting her against us, the Bulgarians, the Poles, the Czechs, the Hungarians, the Romanians? Why do you want to oppose West Germany to us and our friends?"

"You are acting against the interests of the Soviet Union and the other Socialist countries even though we had fought together against the common enemy in World War II."

"You are you keeping the dangers of war before the eyes of the European people and the European people will never forgive you for not letting them live out their lives peacefully, for whipping up tensions."

complete its pursuit and move in close to Gemini 7.

The Gemini 7 pilots remained in excellent spirits, helped along by several hours of music piped from the ground to their cramped cabin.

Before they retired for the night, they received 90 minutes of uninterrupted music, including excerpts from the opera "La Boheme," Schumann's "Symphony No. 3," Rachmaninoff's "Symphony No. 2," "Water Music" by Handel and "Try to Remember."

When the list of longhair music was announced by a ground controller, Lovell commented: "Don't scare me."

The controller then told him: "We're sorry, but there will be no in-flight movies tonight."

Great Shape

Eugene Kranz, late-shift flight director, reported the Gemini 7 spacecraft was in great shape.

"The system's performance is outstanding," he said. "I can't think of any unique or significant problem that bothers us at this time."

Dr. Charles A. Berry, Gemini flight surgeon, reported Borman and Lovell in very fine shape.

"They've been getting plenty of sleep, food and water," Berry said. "The data we are receiving on heart rates, respiration and the like confirms what we saw on the earlier flights and bears out our pre-flight predictions on their health."

Berry said the voices of both were a bit hoarse — probably because of the pure oxygen they breathe, which has a tendency to dry out the tissues of eyes, nose and throat.

"We feel fine," reported Borman.

Sen. Bayh Sees No Advantage to Busing Pupils

KENOSHA (AP) — Money spent for busing of school pupils to achieve racial balance would be put to better use if earmarked for improving quality of facilities, teachers and study, regardless of the racial makeup of a school, Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., said Tuesday.

He told a Carthage College symposium on "Rights and Liberties in American Society" that transporting pupils from one school to another merely to mingle the races was no answer to de facto segregation.

Bayh said the basic concept of the civil rights drive was each person's "right to dream and his reasonable opportunity to make his dream come true." He said the nation had reached a turning point in its civil rights efforts because of the prominent role young Americans are willing to fill.

Civil Defense Director Ordered Dismissed for Sheboygan Campaign

SHEBOYGAN (AP) — The Federal Civil Service Commission has informed the Sheboygan County Board that James P. Smyth should be dismissed as civil defense director because of his unsuccessful race for county clerk in the 1964 primary.

County Board chairman Walter R. Schmidt said the commission had found Smyth in violation of the Hatch Act which forbids partisan political participation by a person whose major source of income is received from funds from a federal agency.

How medical knowledge fights acid indigestion

A leading stomach specialist reports that a little white penny tablet, with a special calcium-magnesium formula, beats products costing five and six times as much in fighting acid indigestion. The proof came from tests on over 100 people at a famous medical center. What is this remarkable tablet? TUMS. Stomach specialists know TUMS is no mere candy mint. Tests show it is the medicine for acid indigestion. TUMS.

lishing a firm ground link between the two Leatherneck beachheads.

Two major Allied search-and-destroy operations swept the entire area recently, including the ground where the rangers were mauled.

"They hit us with rockets, mortars, machine guns, small arms, everything," said Capt. Gene Rogers, 30, of Meridian, Tex., a senior U.S. adviser. "They attacked in mass and hit us from all sides."

Pinned Down

"We were pinned down. People were dropping around us right and left. I carried four or five guys out. They simply overran us."

When the battalion commander was badly wounded, Rogers began directing a retreat, but the Communists continued to hit hard.

As the bloodied battalion fought toward the rear, the Viet Cong moved with it, taking a further toll of dead and wounded. Finally the battalion reached a reserve company.

Once the relief force moved in and set up a defensive perimeter, U. S. jets came in and began strafing and bombing the area. Exploding napalm lit up the darkening sky.

Viet Cong Targets

In the South, planes from the nuclear carrier Enterprise flew 131 sorties against suspected Viet Cong targets in the Mekong Delta south of Saigon, while B52s from Guam hit Tay Ninh Province, along the Cambodian frontier 45 miles northwest of the capital, for the second day.

The explosion of a grenade at Saigon's big Tan Son Nhut airport caused a flurry of excitement during the afternoon.

Eight soldiers were injured. An investigation showed an American soldier accidentally dropped the grenade in an Army supply area.

The truce offer was broadcast by the Viet Cong's clandestine "Liberation Radio" on Monday. Although there was no official reaction yet from U.S. or South Vietnamese military commanders, the view in Saigon was that the proposal was a meaningless propaganda gesture.

ples of the world, he said he hoped the assembly "would be able to work in the Church and the world that renewal of thought, activity, customs and moral force and joy and hope that was the very scope" of the council.

Obviously speaking to persons in Communist lands, he said he was especially addressing "all unjustly held in silence, in oppression and in deprivation of legitimate and sacred rights, owed to every honest man, and especially to you, brothers, who are none other than doers of good, piety and peace."

Unusual details marked the ceremony, with Pope Paul giving $90,000 in checks for charities in five nations as "a symbol of the charity of the entire Church, united around the Pope in the persons of his bishops."

The checks will mean $30,000 for a hospital in Bethlehem, Jordan; $20,000 for community projects by a religious order in Argentina; $15,000 each for agricultural training in southern India and for Catholic Welfare work in Pakistan, and $10,000 for Catholic welfare in Cambodia.

The Pope also wrote special messages addressed to government leaders, intellectuals, artists, women, workers, the poor and the sick, and youth.

Responsibility For Retarded To be Decided

MADISON (AP) — The State Mental Health Advisory Committee decided Tuesday to ask the attorney general whether the state's responsibility to provide public education extends to children who are mentally retarded or emotionally disturbed.

Committee members indicated that they believe some localities are not doing enough to train 953 educable despite mental or emotional handicaps.

"If the attorney general holds that education must be provided for all, the state will have reason for insisting that special classes, or whatever is needed, be operated by local boards," James D. Bouillon, the committee's executive secretary, told newsmen.

State Mayor Won't Apologize to Police for Implying Negligence

WAUKESHA (AP) — Mayor Harold T. Owens refused Tuesday a demand by five police sergeants that he apologize to them because of his decision to place Assistant Chief Howard Tarnish on a night shift after saying the night police force did "not have the proper supervision."

The sergeants, now in charge at night, said the decision implied negligence and dereliction of duty. They demanded either an apology or filing of specific charges. Owens, a retired police chief, referred to the officers involved as "good policemen" but said he would go through with the order effective Jan. 1.

Carol Stream, Ill., to employ about 200 persons. The plant will go into operation late next year, the firm said.

Let's EXPLORE YOUR MIND

By Sylvanus M. Duvall, Ph.D. and Evelyn M. Duvall, Ph.D.

ARE YOU BORN WITH A PERSONALITY? YES ☐ NO ☐

No, say social scientists. People are born usually with the capacity of learning what is recognized as human. Babies are not born knowing how to talk. They achieve this slowly, and only because they are taught to speak. So it is with all the qualities that we call human — including love, character and personality itself. They all are learned. The future of civilization depends upon what is learned, and what is not.

Can books build appreciation of other peoples?

Yes — No —
Yes, they can help. Some books for children and adults are based upon prejudicial attitudes toward various racial, religious and cultural groups. But there are fine new books that respect differences between human groupings and are written to help build appreciation for other peoples. A New York City librarian has compiled a list of books for children of various ages that we will be glad to send you if you are interested.

Are working mothers overworked?

Yes — No —
Yes, they tend to be. A survey of "Changing Times" finds that from 9 to 5 the working wife joins 16 million other women as secretary, waitress, lawyer, teacher or sales person. Then, in addition, in the early morning, at night, and all weekend, she is cook, bottle-washer, seamstress, chauffeur, nurse, arbiter, teacher, friend. You can add still further to her jobs — housekeeper, shopper, billpayer, tutor, and social secretary for the whole family. Her problem is that she never quite gets everything done. Do you have suggestions for lightening her load? If so, tell us what they are.

The ages of anxiety — from 2 to 6 years of age — and how to deal with children during this time, is just one of the many subjects discussed in the booklet, "Your Child's Emotional Health." Take a minute out and send 25 cents, and your name and address (including ZIP Code), to "Let's Explore Your Mind," in care of The Post-Crescent, Appleton, Wis., 54910.

According to county police, Novik was traveling towards Waupaca at 1:30 a.m. Saturday when he lost control of his car and knocked down the signs. # Appleton Firemen May Get Plow to Clear Snow From Driveways

Chief Tells Safety Committee City Crews Won't Cooperate

It was recommended Tuesday night that the Appleton Fire Department purchase a $400 plow attachment after Fire Chief Roland Kuehn complained city crews won't give fire station driveways top plowing priority.

"We just can't seem to get any cooperation," Kuehn told members of the city council's public safety committee during a meeting at the city hall.

(Public Works Director Robert W. Bues today refuted the chief's claim and said the city crews give priority to plowing out fire station driveways from the doors to the street. Bues said the chief had indicated to him the parking lot for firemen should also be given priority for snow removal. Bues said fire stations were on primary street routes.

"We plow the driveways out as fast as possible but in a snow emergency can't expend the men and equipment to clear the parking lot for firemen," Bues said. "I told the chief he had the manpower and suggested his men might do some shoveling in their leisure time," Bues said.

Ald. Gerald Ahrens (2nd), who termed the situation "ridiculous," cast the lone vote against the plow purchase which now has to be approved by the council.

"I have never heard of such a foolish thing in all my life," Ahrens declared. "There is no reason why the driveways at the city's four fire stations cannot be cleared from snow the first thing so trucks can get out."

Money for the plow was included in the budget, the committee was told, and on that basis members made their recommendations.

Ald. Arthur Mueller (19th), committee chairman, said the Appleton fire department was large enough now that it probably needed to have some kind of special snow removal equipment in addition to the city service.

"There is a safety angle to be considered here," remarked Ald. Orville Strutz (17th). "The fire trucks have to be able to get out during a snowstorm."

At one point Ahrens asked how many shovels the fire department had assigned to it. However, some aldermen raised the question as to whether the firemen would agree to do the snow plowing if they had the equipment.

"Let's get the plow and if it doesn't work out we can turn the equipment over to the street department," commented Ald. John Ayers (12th).

Bues contacted Kuehn today after hearing about the public safety committee meeting.

Cleared Driveway: Later, this morning Kuehn told the Post-Crescent he did not say cooperation was lacking from the street department and had based his complaint on past experience of it taking two to three days for the city to plow out the parking lot.

Kuehn said today city plows made a sweep through the driveways of fire stations whenever it snowed and there was no problem. He said the firemen's parking lot and area where municipal vehicles are fueled were his concern.

"I was talking about the parking and fueling areas needing better plowing service — not the driveways," Kuehn said. Some committee members said today they had not gotten that impression last night.

Police Investigate Wheel, Tire Thefts

KAUKAUNA — Police are investigating the theft of four 14-inch wheel rims and four used tires from the Gustman Chevrolet warehouse located on railroad property near Second Street.

The loss was reported Tuesday, but the items may have been taken anytime during the past few days. No sign of forced entry into the building could be found.

$16 Taken From Office Of Appleton Doctor

About $16 was reported taken from the office of Dr. G. P. Santos, 2718 N. Meade St., in a burglary which probably occurred Tuesday, according to Appleton police.

The money, in an envelope, was taken from a filing cabinet, police said. Entry into the office was made by forcing a door. Investigation is continuing.

Kaukauna Asks Study Of Cable TV Request

Action on Fox Cities Communications Proposal Held Up; Mayor Wants PSC Advice

KAUKAUNA — A request for an exclusive community television antenna franchise to the city was referred Tuesday to the city attorney and legislative committee for further study.

Filing the request to the council was Fox Cities Communications. Along with it, the firm submitted a model ordinance similar to one presented to other municipalities in the area. It asked for a 20-year agreement to use telephone and utility lines in the city to provide cable television to subscribers.

A $25 connection charge would be made to hook into the circuit plus a $5 monthly fee, and $1.25 per month additional if more than one television set was hooked up in one home. The concern agreed to pay the city $1,000 annually for 3,000 customers, $2,000 for between 3,000 and 4,000 customers, $3,000 for next 1,000 and $5,000 for 6,000 or more customers.

Contacted PSC Mayor Joseph Bayorgeon had contacted the Public Service Commission (PSC) in regard to community antenna TV and felt the PSC should investigate the matter thoroughly to determine whether the public interest could best be served by hand-

Collect $10,610 In Red Feather General Division

About $10,610 or 59.6 per cent of the general solicitation division's $16,330 goal has been collected in the United Red Feather campaign, Arthur Malin, executive director, announced today.

However, all the packets have not been returned and Mrs. E. R. Shannon, division chairman, has asked that the division volunteers make the calls and return the packets to the team captains as soon as possible because the campaign ends Dec. 15.

YMCA Secretaries Confer at Appleton

Soviets Respect, Honor Youth, Future Communist Foundation

"The youth of the Soviet Union are respected and honored because they constitute the future of communism," executive secretaries of central Wisconsin YMCA's were told Tuesday at the bi-monthly meeting at the Appleton YMCA.

John E. Uhlenhopp, general secretary of the Rochester, Minn., YMCA, one of five men who spent two months as a YMCA representative in the USSR on an exchange program, was the speaker.

The purpose of the trip, Uhlenhopp explained, was to get a broad picture of the Soviet Union and study their youth leadership programs.

Five-Man Team The five-man team traveled 31,000 miles covering areas from Siberia to the Black Sea and such major cities as Moscow, Leningrad, Minsk, Baku and Riga.

"I got the impression that the Soviet youth are no different from our own," Uhlenhopp said. "They enjoy music and dancing; are fascinated by the newest American cars and worried about the draft.

"However, they thoroughly believe, and are constantly reminded that Americans want war."

They are also convinced, he said, that by 1980 the Soviet Union will move from socialism to pure communism — "but it will be done peacefully and through economic means they say."

Youth League

About 22 million young people between 14 and 28 belong to the Komsomol, the young people's league, which incorporates every organization that has contact with young people.

"The main task of Komsomol," Uhlenhopp said, "is to sell the ideology outlined in their manual. The purpose, it states, is to prepare builders of communism who will defend the mother land; prepare youths who will serve as shock groups, and prepare people who will extend international communism."

"All indications are," Uhlenhopp said, "the young people believe in communism and follow the ideology."

To illustrate, he recounted a trip to the Inguri Dam in Siberia, highest in the world, which had been constructed by more than 60,000 Komsomol members who volunteered their services.

Summer in Siberia

"And as many as 15,000 young people have already volunteered to spend their summers in Siberia looking for minerals," he said.

Communist ideology has been ingrained in the youth since nursery school, Uhlenhopp said. In grades one through four, all youngsters are in a group called the Oktobrists, comparable to our Brownies and Indian guides. Ideology is part of their daily school lessons.

From the fourth grade on all

Judge Orders Mental Exams For Cornelius

Youth Charged in Oneida Fires Denied Change of Counsel

Richard Allen Cornelius, 19, Milwaukee, was ordered sent to Winnebago State Hospital for examination Tuesday after a third bid for change of attorneys was turned down by County Judge Urban P. Van Susteren.

Cornelius, a former rural West DePere resident charged with three counts of arson and one of criminal trespass in connection with fires that destroyed the Immaculate Conception Catholic Church and two barns in the Town of Oneida Oct. 31, will be in the state hospital for a period not to exceed 60 days, according to the court order Tuesday afternoon.

Judge Van Susteren, assigned to the case after County Judge Gustave J. Keller disqualified himself last week, further ordered that the chief physician at the hospital make a report on Cornelius' mental condition and deliver that report to the clerk of courts when the Milwaukee man is released from the hospital.

Talked to Mother Cornelius' third request for substitution of attorney in his last three court appearances came after Judge Van Susteren called a short recess Tuesday to allow him to talk to the youth's mother.

Cornelius again maintained that he was within his rights to have the court appoint Atty. Allen Cain at county expense.

Judge Keller, who earlier found Cornelius to be indigent and entitled to counsel at county expense, on Nov. 22 turned down Cornelius' initial request for change of attorneys.

Judge Keller denied a second and similar bid on Nov. 26 and only last week the State Supreme Court, in an opinion requested by Cain, upheld the judge's denial for the change, saying that an indigent, although having the right to counsel at county expense, could not select that counsel.

After Judge Van Susteren refused to substitute attorneys, Cornelius cited a Wisconsin Supreme Court case wherein the defendant allegedly was granted a substitution under similar circumstances.

Dist. Atty. Nick F. Schaefer then presented the judge with the letter received last week from the high court stating its refusal to issue an order to show cause against Judge Keller in regard to the change of attorneys.

Testimony at Inquest Indicates Student's Body Wasn't Mutilated

OSHKOSH — Opening testimony in the coroner's inquest into the cause of death of Stephen Kappell today indicated that he was unconscious when he was placed in the water.

Dr. Helen Young, assistant pathologist at the Milwaukee County Medical Examiners Office who performed the autopsy on the 18-year-old Wisconsin State University-Oshkosh student whose bound and weighted body was found Oct. 16, floating in Lake Winnebago, said it was her opinion he was unconscious when he entered the water.

She qualified this by saying, "He could have been conscious when he entered the water and rendered unconscious by striking something in the water."

She said death was caused by drowning.

In explaining her findings, Dr. Young said the body had not been mutilated but bruises were evident on the left side of the face and head and on the wrists. There had been no skull fracture.

She said a muck-like substance was found in the trachea and lungs.

In opening the inquest, Dist. Atty. Gerald Engeldinger explained to the six-man coroner's jury that the reason for the inquest is to attempt to determine by what means Kappell came to his death and to some degree of accuracy, when.

First Witness

The state's first witness, Harold Arentsen, an Oshkosh symphony conductor, told the jury he spotted the body at about 1 p.m. Oct. 16 while fishing in Miller's Bay in the northern section of Menominee Park near the breakwater.

Another witness William Kiser, 602 Wagon St., testified that he had seen an object floating approximately 300 feet from where the body was found the day before. At the time he and his wife had thought it was a log, but after further thought they decided it was a body.

Oshkosh Fire Department Capt. Clifford Werner, said when the body was taken from the water, the hands were not bound together but strips of cloth were around each wrist, indicating they may have been bound together at one time. He explained that the knees and the ankles were bound with a large rock tied to the knee bindings.

Three Psychiatrists

Engeldinger asked three psychiatrists, Dr. George Arndt, 100 W. Wisconsin Ave., Neenah, former Winnebago County Guidance Center director; Dr. E. F. Schubert, superintendent of Central State Hospital; Waupun, and Dr. Charles A. Wunsch, 130 Walnut St., Green Bay, to sit and evaluate the inquest testimony.

Kappell, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Kappell, 1017 Hillcrest Drive, was last seen in his Breese Hall dormitory room about 6 p.m. Sept. 28. His whereabouts between that time and the time he was found floating in Lake Winnebago are up to now a mystery to authorities.

Dr. Young stated there was no evidence of any food in the stomach but there was evidence of some type of medication which she said was similar to a time-delay type capsule such as a cold capsule. Absence of food from the stomach indicated, in her opinion, that Kappell had not eaten in a matter of two or three hours before death.

Dr. Young said, an autopsy cannot prove if Kappell had suffered a concussion from his head injury. Such injury could have rendered him unconscious or the drugs, (referring to the time-delay capsules), could have rendered him unconscious, she said.

The coldness of the water could have revived him, she supposed, indicating these are possibilities.

Murphy, Inc. Drivers Want Union Shop

Recently organized truck drivers employed by Murphy Concrete Products, Inc., which has operations in Kaukauna and the Fox Cities region, voted for a union shop Tuesday.

The election, requested by Teamsters Local 563, was conducted by the Wisconsin Employment Relations Board (WERB).

Robert Schlieve, secretary-treasurer of Local 563, said the union shop was approved by a 3 to 1 margin. 20 drivers participated in the balloting with the final vote, 15-5.

The union and company have been in bargaining negotiations on a contract since Murphy Concrete Products drivers were organized by Local 563 during the ready-mix strike this past summer.

Under terms of a union shop agreement, all new employees must become members of the union within 30 days after being hired by the company.

5 Admit Part In Beer Party Near Oneida

2 Others Deny They Contributed to Minors' Delinquency

Five guilty and two innocent pleas were heard this morning when seven persons appeared in Outagamie County Court Branch 2 on charges of contributing to the delinquency of minors.

Charges against a total of 13 young people followed an investigation by Outagamie County authorities of a beer party early Sept. 4 in an abandoned dance hall in the Town of Oneida.

Changing their pleas to guilty and fined $75 and costs apiece or 36 days in jail, were Patricia H. Metoxen, 18, Beverly Jean Metoxen, 19, Eugene M. Cornelius, 20, and Josephine M. Cornelius, 19, all of route 2, West DePere, and Guss L. Ness, 20, Box 14, Oneida.

Plead Innocent

Pleading innocent were Darlene Cornelius, 18, 101 S. Chestnut St., Green Bay, and Ronald Metoxen, 24, route 1, Kaukauna. Miss Cornelius filed an affidavit of prejudice against County Judge Gustave J. Keller and since the complaints were heard jointly, the affidavit will also apply to Metoxen.

The cases against Miss Cornelius and Metoxen were continued for assignment to another judge.

Six young persons had either pleaded guilty or changed pleas to guilty before today. They each were fined $75 and costs and included Steven Johnson, 20, Box 74, Oneida; Ronald King, 18, route 3, Seymour; Leon Smith, 24, Milwaukee; Allen Pamanet, 18, Chicago; LeRoy J. ## Excited Waitress Gives Firemen Right Number, But Wrong Street

A waitress who apparently became excited summoned Appleton firemen to the right street number but the wrong street about 12:40 p.m. Tuesday.

Firemen received a call for a grease fire at 343 W. College Avenue. They went to the scene, only to find that the proprietor at Shine's Bar knew nothing of a grease fire.

One of the firemen then recalled that there was a restaurant at 343 W. Wisconsin Ave. and since it was a grease fire, the call could possibly have come from there.

He was right. When firemen arrived at Ken and Kay's Restaurant, the cook had the blaze nearly out, using salt and rags.

Hopes for Help From Hometown

Marine Will Clothe Vietnamese

There's a picture being circulated which shows a group of small South Vietnamese children, poorly dressed, standing on a dirt pile somewhere in Viet Nam.

The man who took the picture, Appleton Marine L. Cpl. Steve Eggert, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Eggert, 1518 W. Spencer St., is organizing from his billet in Viet Nam a city-wide clothing collection to dress the children and others like them for the coming holiday.

Eggert has asked his brother Phillip, 17, at the Appleton High School, and Jeffery, 15, and sister, Jenny, 13, both at Wilson Junior High School, to ask their teachers "for a few minutes to talk to the class." He has asked them to read his letter, describing the conditions of the children in Viet Nam, "borrow some wagons" and collect usable clothing to send to him for distribution.

Paint Poster

The Eggert's older sister, Pat, has agreed to follow Steve's directions and paint a colorful poster publicizing the clothing drive which the children can display when giving their talks before the students. The poster would show the American and South Vietnamese flags and have the slogan "Operation-Viet Nam" across the top.

The Marine, who has been in the embattled Southeastern

Asian country since July, has written in other letters to his family that he is appalled by the conditions under which the people live.

"Look in your American history books where it tells about the Indians, about in the early 1900s. These people here still live that way and in many cases, even worse."

Eggert and other American soldiers have been giving the Vietnamese "tin and wood to build half-way decent houses to live in, soap to wash with (these houses don't have running water, not even a well and no electricity) and we've been giving them health and medical aid.

Need Clothes

"These people are still behind and need clothes, mostly childrens' clothes, toys, shoes, and common kitchen utensils that don't require electricity."

The soldier said that efforts on the part of American people to provide them with clothing "would be appreciated as much as they appreciate us here fighting to win them their freedom from communism."

The Marine said he will write letters to Appleton officials, American Legion groups and the Chamber of Commerce to get backing for the youth's clothing march and to raise funds to pay for the clothing shipments.

"When everything gets here," the Marine writes, "I'll take pictures and tell the people what you've done."

Mrs. Eggert said her son "is the kind of guy who always helped people fix flat tires." She said in his behalf she has talked to some friends who have already collected clothing for shipment.

Office Building Uses Electric Lights for Heat

Open House Held At New Appleton Business Structure

Open house was held Monday night at a new office building which uses electric lighting as its primary heat source.

The 8,700 square foot building, at 2631 N. Meade St., was built by two Appleton men — Robert Spooner and Clyde Stephenson.

While use of electric lighting as a heat source is still revolutionary in some parts of the country, the new principle has already evolved into a more advanced state in the new office building which was viewed Monday night by hundreds of people.

The first buildings to the "heat of light" idea — Kimberly High School and Einstein Junior High School and the south side Park N' Market in Appleton — were planned with considerable investments for supplemental heat sources.

Small Water Heater
The "supplemental" heat source in the new office building is a two square-foot water heater.

Warmth in the building is provided by extracting air from a room through an opening near electric lights and passing it by the lights where it is heated to about 80 degrees. The air is then circulated to air conditioners where it is cooled to 70 degrees. The heat is retained and recirculated through the building. The 70-degree air is again extracted past the lights and the process is continually repeated.

What makes the installation in the new office building revolutionary is the minimizing of space and an investment for the supplemental heat source. The basic system is considered adequate for outside temperatures down to 20 degrees. Below this, the supplemental source is needed. The small water heater provides the extra source of heat. Hot water heats air circulated through the heater and then the air conditioners circulate the warm air through the building in heat ducts.

Five Units
The building has five separate heating-air conditioning units — one for each tenant.

The tenants are International Business Machines Corp., Accurate Business Controls, Inc., Executive Secretarial Service, Management Science, Inc., and Central States Management Consultants, Inc.

Architects for the building were Sauter Seaborn Ltd., Appleton; general contractor was St. Aubin Construction Co., Inc., Little Chute; heating and ventilating contractor was Wenzel Brothers, Inc., Appleton; plumbing was by Hietpas, Inc., Little Chute, and electrical contracting was by Stephenson Electric Co., Appleton.

Construction began in April of this year and the first tenants moved into the building in August.

Application For CATV Is Tabled

NEENAH — An application, with an attached ordinance, for installation of a closed circuit television system was discussed and tabled by the public protection committee Tuesday afternoon.

The request was presented by Fox Cities Communications, in hopes of securing the closed circuit programming concession for the Fox River Valley. The same communication has been presented to other cities in the valley.

The communication was tabled by the committee to watch for future developments of the proposal as Appleton has received four proposals from different organizations.

Closed circuit operates by running a number of channels into houses from a high community antenna via a coaxial cable.

Salvation Army Conducts Yule Kettle Program

Other committee members are Hartley Barker and Herbert Crane.

The Christmas program opened Monday and will continue through Christmas Eve.

Some holiday projects the Salvation Army already has underway are co-ordinating giving and receiving of Christmas baskets, visits to hospitals, Christmas parties for children, a free toy "store" and giving winter relief.

Annexation Matters

Former Supreme Court Justice Hired by City

OSHKOSH — The City of Menasha has retained former state Supreme Court Justice Henry Hughes as an extra attorney to assist in annexation matters, it was learned today.

Hughes said in his Oshkosh office this morning he will be working on the main annexation case, which is being fought for the Town of Menasha by Fond du Lac Attorney George St. Peter.

City Attorney Richard Steffens will continue to have sole responsibility for two of the other four cases pending on the recent 183-acre annexation, and the fourth suit may be combined with the primary court case.

Utility Involvement
Melvin Crowley, attorney for the Menasha Water and Light Commission will come into the case whenever the utility is involved, Steffens said Tuesday.

Hughes served as justice of the supreme court from 1948 to 1951 and as a Winnebago County Circuit Court Judge for 10 years prior to 1948.

He stepped down as a justice in a dispute over salary in 1951 and has been in private practice since.

Hughes will make his first appearance in the case today at an adverse hearing called by St. Peter, he said. Hughes said he has not been following the case.

Steffens will be on the stand under oath during the hearing, along with Mayor John Klein and two members of the city annexation committee, J. H. Porto and Walter O'Brien.

Body of Man
Filled Ditch

Ludwig Grillheisel Thought to Have Died Recently

MENASHA — The body of a 71-year-old man was found this morning face down in an ice-covered ditch in the Town of Menasha.

The Winnebago County Coroner's office identified him as Ludwig Grillheisel, 1535 Brighton Beach Road.

The ditch along S. Oneida Road was filled with about one foot of water and a thin layer of ice. The ice had not formed around the body, leading investigators to believe the victim had not been in the water for a long period.

The location of the body was about one-half block off State 114.

An autopsy will be conducted to determine the cause of death, Richard Mueller, assistant county coroner, said. Investigators said there was no sign of a hit and run accident or foul play.

Called Sheriff
Mr. and Mrs. Brian Doud, 754 S. Oneida Road, discovered the body as they drove out of their driveway on the way to work.

"I thought it was a dummy placed there by some kids at first," Mrs. Doud said. After her husband pulled the man from the water, they immediately realized he was dead, and called the sheriff, she said.

"At this point," Lt. Richard Gunther, investigating officer for the sheriff's office, said, "it is impossible to tell even if there was foul play." Any cause of death determination at the scene would only be a guess, he added.

The victim's wallet contained a considerable amount of money, ruling out the possibility of a robbery.

He was dressed in the clothes for which he was known in Menasha, a red-and-black lumberman's jacket, red hat, blue jeans and boots.

Laird Says Solons Must Use Powers

Predicts End of Governmental System if Legislature Fails to Stir

NEW LONDON — Unless the legislative branch of the government begins to exercise its constitutional powers, the American governmental structure is doomed, predicted 7th District Rep. Melvin R. Laird (R-Marshfield) at a joint meeting of the Rotary and Lions Clubs here Tuesday.

He referred to Congress as a rubber stamp.

The house majority leader said the second session of the 89th Congress should go over and correct some of the legislative flaws passed in the first session, Laird said.

"Unless Congress is willing to exercise its responsibility, we might as well dissolve the Legislature and give up the system of checks and balances," Laird said.

Laird said as the senior minority party member on the defense appropriation committee, his committee had never had a partisan vote on defense finances.

Laird said he did not realize "such a fuss would occur" when he said Congress had the constitutional right and responsibility to raise armies and declare war. "I have been called a War Hawk because I believe in the constitution and the rights of Congress," Laird said.

"Close to Major War"
The president should seek congressional action before raising the number of men fighting in Viet Nam or raising the amount of aid to that country, Laird said.

Laird said the president had already escalated our commitment to the point where "we are drifting dangerously close to a major ground war in Viet Nam."

Laird said it is time President Johnson gave Congress and the American people the facts of the war situation.

Blockade Port
His suggestion was a blockade of the port Hai Phong. The effect on such a quarantine would in three to six months be far greater than the escalation of the ground war, Laird said.

He cited the figures of 90 per cent of all weapons and supplies for communist troops as coming through the port, while only 10 per cent came by way of the railroad linking North Viet Nam with China.

tion set forth a list of specifics."

Fish charged the Democrats wanted partisan politics in the local municipalities offices with mayors and aldermen to be elected on party tickets.

Hanson contended the Republicans campaigned to cut spending and reduce taxes and then turned around and raised the taxes and adopted the biggest budget in the state's history. Fish answered the Republican campaign was to "Cut reckless spending" and that the Republicans never promised to cut spending and taxes.

Business Conditions

When Fish pointed to the successful business conditions in the state under the Republican administration, Hanson replied that success was the result of the economic policies fostered in Washington by President Johnson and his predecessor.

Where Fish called attention to the Kellett Committee report on government administration, Hanson replied that Nelson had a similar study and report but the Republican-controlled legislature would not put it into practice. He said the Democrats wanted to give Knowles the right to upgrade administrative procedures without legislative approval but the republican senate rejected the idea.

Hanson also asked Fish why the Republicans did not do anything about the most expensive form of government in the state—the local towns and cities and counties that spend 80 per cent of the taxes. "Why should there be all these town governments for only a handful of people in an area," he asked. He charged the Kellett report had not touched upon this "most expensive and most wasteful part of state government."

Appleton Alderman Claims Pranksters' Field Day Damaging Street Signs

Pranksters are having a field day in Appleton turning street signs around, Ald. Clifford Radder (16th) said Tuesday night.

He asked for signs to be tackled so they will stay in place and also suggested that city policemen should turn them around when they are reversed.

"The department doesn't have a welder and I don't think there is that much vandalism with street signs to warrant it," commented Police Chief Earl Wolff. "We have not had any complaints about street signs."

Discuss Problem

The discussion on signs took place at a meeting of the public safety committee at the city hall.

Ald. Arthur E. Mueller (19th), committee chairman, said a solution to the problem, if there is one, was for aldermen to report any sign vandalism in their respective wards so corrections could be made.

"I've seen quite a few street signs in the city turned around, some are bent halfway and others hanging to one side," Radder said.

Radder and a few other aldermen also said several street signs in Appleton are old, rusted and in need of painting or replacement.

Good News For Committee

However, Chief Wolff had some good news for the committee on signs. He reported that block numbers are now being painted on all new street signs being erected in the city.

A few months ago a group of residents petitioned the city council to take action toward having block numbers inscribed on street signs. They also asked for a uniform policy for the location of house numbers.

Stockbridge Party Planned For Retardates

STOCKBRIDGE — A Christmas party is planned Sunday for all retarded children in Calumet County and their parents at the high school gymnasium.

The program, planned from 2 to 4 p.m. is being sponsored for the first time by Stockbridge organizations, under the direction of Mrs. Hugh Leader, route 1, Menasha, program chairman of the County Retarded Children.

Entertainment will include folk singing, instrumental numbers, baton twirling and dance routines by 4-H Clubs from Darboy, Sherwood and Stockbridge. Santa will distribute treats to the children, donated by the Stockbridge Chamber of Commerce. Refreshments will be provided by women of the William D. Hostettler American Legion Auxiliary Unit.

Members of the Calumet County Day Care Service Board, their husbands and wives, will be guests.

Efforts have been made to compile an invitation list of retardates aside from those attending the special classes, but written invitations are not required.

WERB Mediates City-Union Dispute

Talks Start Today in Effort to Break 1966 Contract Deadlock

The Wisconsin Employment Relations Board today started mediating the 1966 contract dispute between the City of Appleton and Teamsters Local 563.

Both the union and the city council's personnel committee—deadlocked in recent weeks over wages for the coming year—had asked the WERB to assign a mediator to assist at future bargaining sessions.

Arvid Anderson, Madison, one of the commission's labor-management specialists, was scheduled to meet with city and union negotiators at the city hall, starting at 1:30 p.m.

Anderson in recent days has been in Menasha mediating talks between city officials there and the teachers' union.

Moved Swiftly

The WERB moved swiftly in assigning a man to Appleton after first receiving the request for mediation late last week and discussing it Monday morning.

Teamsters Local 563 represents several employees in the department of public works and is exclusive bargaining agent for them.

Agreement has already been reached by the parties on thrown open to the press and general public.

The last wage dispute involving the union and city lasted 14 months and was finally settled through factfinding.

Should the city and union be unable to resolve their differences in mediation talks, there is the possibility of going to factfinding again. It would be automatic if both parties agreed to request factfinding and there would be no need to conduct a hearing to determine whether a dispute exists.

The personnel committee is headed by Max Hensel, the lone citizen member.

Woman Claiming Right to Kill Child Called Sane

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Three psychiatrists reaffirmed Tuesday their findings that a young mother, who said she had a right to kill her baby daughter, was sane and able to stand trial on murder charges.

Mrs. Joanne Vukovich, 24, is accused of throwing her 20-month-old daughter from a third floor apartment twice and then drowning her in a bathtub. One psychiatrist, Dr. Joseph E. Weber, quoted her as saying, "I had the right to kill her. She was mine."

The findings repeated an earlier conclusion of sanity. Circuit Judge Herbert J. Steffes had ordered the second examination after a doctor at the county mental hospital said he believed Mrs. Vukovich was not mentally able to stand trial.

$85,000 Loss Estimated In Milwaukee Store Fire

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Fire Chief James R. Moher placed damage at $85,000 Tuesday in the blaze that swept a three-story near - downtown building housing a furniture store and 40 apartments.

The cause of the fire Monday night remained undetermined. Moher said. More than a score of firemen suffered minor injuries and 60 persons were driven from their apartments by the five-alarm blaze.

Chosen as the 1966 poster child, Lori, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wagner, symbolizes the quarter of a million children born each year in the U.S. with serious birth defects.

Born with an open spine, she was treated surgically when she was nine days old.

Although the little girl has to wear leg braces and crutches, her outlook on life is healthy, her parents say.

She entered kindergarten in September, 1965 where she receives physical therapy and exercises.

She has a good ear for music and can often pick out a tune on the piano after hearing it just once. She knows and sings a number of songs while her father, a bandleader, accompanies her on guitar.

Outstanding Man To be Selected By Jaycee Unit

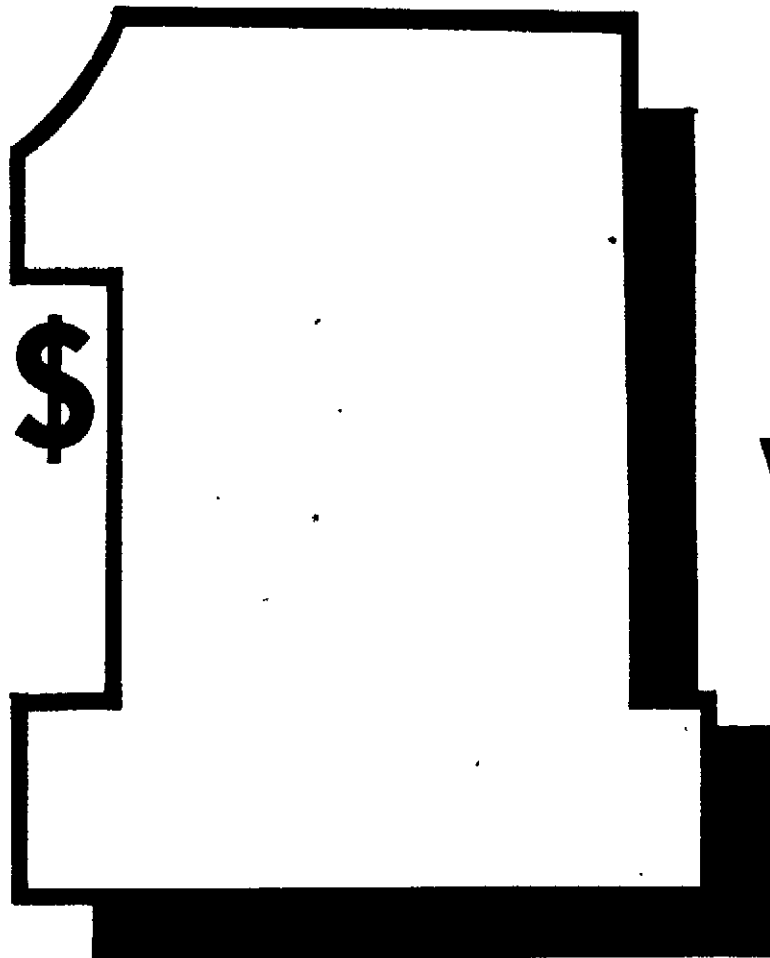

KAUKAUNA — The Jaycees will select an outstanding young man of the year in the city as a new project this year.

A committee, headed by Neal Steinberg, is contacting churches, business places, clubs and organizations in an effort to determine whether some young man between the ages of 21 and 35 deserves recognition for his contributions to the community during the past year.

Blanks also are available from Steinberg or at either of the two city banks. Anyone may nominate a person for the distinguished service award by filling out the form and returning it to the chairman by Nov. 20.

The local winner will be entered in state competition and the state winner advances to national finals when the Jaycees announce America's 10 outstanding young men.

Leftist Groups Act to Combine, Enter Elections

Want to Defeat Congressmen Who Back Viet Nam War

BY ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — When activists of the New Left assembled here on Nov. 28 for the anti-Viet Nam peace march, their leaders met secretly in the Eorum Room of the Shoreham Hotel. The topic of discussion: whether to form a militant political action organization joining the peace movement, the student protest movement, and the civil rights movement's left wing. The 100 political activists, ranging from genuine liberals to pro-Communist radicals, reached no agreement. But the mere fact of the meeting marks a new and disturbing trend in American politics.

Evans Novak

The ambitious purpose is to harness all elements of "The Movement" — peace, student, and civil rights — to electoral politics. The chief targets are Congressmen, including liberal Democrats, who support President Johnson in Viet Nam.

Second Meeting
Actually, the Nov. 28 meeting was the second in the current effort to organize a militant left.

The first was in Santa Barbara, Calif., last summer. In attendance were militant liberals and leftwingers, including members of the California Democratic Council (CDC), the Students for a Democratic Society (SDS), leaders of the anti-Viet Nam teach-in movement, the Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party, and the Massachusetts Political Action for Peace. In addition to respectable liberals such as Ronnie Dugger of Texas, on hand were familiar figures out of the radical far left, including Lou Goldblatt, a second-rank leader of Harry Bridges's International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

For several hours, they discussed getting "The Movement" into the 1966 elections. Goldblatt called for a national coalition of "organized minorities" and ridiculed the liberal Americans for Democratic Action (ADA) as frustrated, middle-aged non-activists.

Leftist invective against the ADA was just like old times. The ADA was created after World War II by liberals determined to exclude Communists. Now, 20 years later, American liberals again are fighting that same battle over whether to exclude anybody believing in totalitarianism — that is, communism. Most of the militants of the New Left oppose the ADA's principle of exclusion. Accordingly, this vital question was an emotional undercurrent at the two meetings.

Some of the groups taking part in both meetings — for example, SDS and the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee (SNCC) — refuse to exclude Communists. One vocal participant in the Washington meeting was Arthur Kinoy, a leader in the far left National Lawyers Guild and a past member of Communist front organizations.

But some of those present — notably Texas liberal Dugger — insist on exclusion. Writing in the Texas Observer (which he edits), Dugger branded as a "grave mistake" the SDS decision last summer to remove a ban on Communists.

Thus, the real reason the two meetings called to harness the New Left agreed on no firm organization was a fundamental difference over exclusion of Communists.

Against U.S. in Viet Nam
This dispute over exclusion does not mean the effort is over. A third meeting is scheduled for the Midwest after Christmas. And despite doctrinal differences, the New Left is welded together on one point — a passionate commitment against the U.S. effort in Viet Nam.

The invitation letter for the Washington meeting was signed among others by Paul Booth of the SDS, Stuart Hughes of SANE (a prominent pacifist organization), Mike Miller (Friends of SNCC), and Mike Schneider (CDC). It opens with this blast: "Certainly the (Washington peace march) is needed because the 'great consensus' program has been a disaster for the cause of peace and of a decent relationship between the United States and the third world."

A draft statement (never issued) titled "On the Need for Strengthening the New Politics" charged that the present Congress has "utterly failed" to meet the "international crisis." It continued: "The prosecution of a politically absurd and morally corruptive war in Viet Nam . . . has gone almost unchallenged in the 89th Congress."

The object is clear: to organize a major campaign for "peace" candidates in next year's election by using the resources of every protest group and linking them into one massive political action organization. Though few if any of these candidates are likely to win, their campaigns would inject a new and strident note into American politics.

Johnson Expected to Get Defense Budget Approval

Administration Probably Will Seek $1 Billion

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON (AP) — With a mounting feeling in Congress that the Viet Nam war is going to get bigger and more costly, President Johnson seems likely to get overwhelming approval for any defense figure he may propose next month in his new budget.

The President is working on the military budget at his Texas ranch. He said Monday that in aiding the South Vietnamese to resist aggression "we are going to supply whatever men will be needed for that effort."

Even before the new budget goes to Congress, the administration is expected to ask supplemental funds to boost the $1.7 billion already tacked on the current fiscal year's outlays because of mounting war costs.

$1 Billion Requested

If the new supplemental request is less than $1 billion, many members of Congress will be surprised.

Whatever budget cutting Congress does next year — and it may not be extensive if the economy continues to roll along in high gear — probably will be carried out on foreign aid and some domestic programs.

More and more, there is a feeling among many Congress members that the Viet Nam struggle is far from its peak.

Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, has said he sees no alternative to a substantial step-up in American participation in the fighting and the broadening of attacks on the Communists.

Years of Fighting

Like Russell, Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., has called for action to knock out the principal North Viet Nam harbor of Haiphong. As head of the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee, he is predicting "hard and bitter" fighting that may last several years.

Rep. John P. Saylor, R-Pa., who served several weeks in the war area as a naval reservist, says that the war can't be won unless the Navy blockades North Viet Nam shipping and bombs the industrial complex around Hanoi and Haiphong.

President Johnson has limited U.S. bombing targets in an effort to convince the North Vietnamese that the United States doesn't want to destroy their country but only to stop their aggressive action against South Viet Nam.

Rev. Reeb Murder Hearing

Defendant Struck Him, Minister Says at Trial

SELMA, Ala. (AP) — A California minister, testifying in the murder trial of three white men, says he was struck by one of the defendants in a street attack which left the Rev. James J. Reeb of Boston fatally wounded.

"I had a very good view of the man who was attacking me," said the Rev. Clark Olsen of Berkeley, Calif., a companion of the slain minister.

Another clergyman, the Rev. Orliff Miller of Boston, who also was attacked, testifies today as the second prosecution witness.

"I turned to face him," Olsen testified Tuesday. "I was facing him before he hit me."

"Do you think you could recognize him if you were to see him again?" asked prosecutor Virgil M. Ashworth.

The courtroom was quiet. All eyes were on the slender, dark-haired minister. Olsen stood, searched the crowded courtroom and then pointed to heavy-set Elmer L. Cook, 42, one of the three white men charged with first-degree murder in Reeb's death.

That was the man, said the witness, who attacked him the night of March 9 when Reeb was clubbed to the pavement on a Selma street shortly after a civil rights march. Reeb died two days later of multiple skull fractures and a massive blood clot on the brain.

Not Positive

When Olsen was asked if he could recognize anyone else who took part in the attack, he said he could not be positive but that the other two defendants, brothers Namon O'Neal Hoggie, 31, and William Stanley Hoggie, 37, resembled two of the assailants.

"I cannot positively identify them," the witness said. "All I can say is they resemble the men."

The jury of white men listened intently. The jurors were selected after the prosecution struck two men who said they felt that Reeb should not have come to Selma. Other jury panel members were silent when asked if the slain minister's civil rights activities would prejudice their verdict.

Defense attorney Joseph T. Pilcher, firing questions before the clergyman finished his answers, went into detail about the activities of the three ministers — all Unitarians who flew to Selma after Negro marchers were beaten by state troopers.

$1.8 Billion Firm To be Formed Of ABC, IT&T

NEW YORK (AP) — American Broadcasting Companies Inc. and the International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. have agreed to merge into a $1.8 billion concern operating in nearly every phase of the communications industry.

The merger, approved by the boards of directors of the two companies Tuesday night, would involve a stock transaction of between $350 and $400 million.

Harold S. Geneen, chairman and president of I.T.&T. and Leonard H. Goldenson, president of ABC, said in a joint statement:

"The consummation of the arrangement is subject to the approval of the shareholders of each company and to the approval of the Federal Communications Commission and other appropriate government agencies and the obtaining of a favorable tax ruling."

The impact of the merger would also be felt strongly abroad. I.T.&T. is a major producer of radio, television and appliances in Europe, Latin America and the Far East.

Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton, center rear, peers over the shoulder of another man while listening to speeches on the front steps of the State Capitol in Harrisburg during civil rights march Tuesday. Demonstrators were hoping to stir the State Legislature into action on stalled civil rights legislation. The governor later addressed the group promising support. (AP Wirephoto)

U. S., Britain, France Opposed

Economic Boycott of South Africa Within U.N. Has Nearly No Chance

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Most U.N. delegates agreed today that a move to impose an economic boycott on South Africa has virtually no chance because of opposition by the United States, Britain and France.

The U.N. special political committee voted overwhelming condemnation of South Africa's racial policies Tuesday night and called for economic penalties against the white supremacist government.

The strongly worded resolution, which branded South Africa's apartheid policy of racial segregation a threat to international peace, was approved 78-1 with 16 abstentions. The United States, Britain and France abstained.

Colonial Policies

Portugal, whose colonial policies have been under bitter African attack, cast the lone no vote. South Africa boycotted the debate.

"The United States rejected the contention that peace was threatened by South Africa's racial policies and said it would not support any move to impose economic sanctions."

Only the Security Council has the authority to order mandatory sanctions. It has refused in the past to vote such penalties against South Africa.

The Western Big Three all voted no in a separate ballot on the passage in the resolution calling for sanctions. This was approved 70-12, assuring it of the two-thirds majority necessary for adoption in the assembly.

The resolution, sponsored by 47 Asian and African nations, appealed to South Africa's "major trading partners" to halt commercial relations with the racist regime.

The resolution also renewed a request to all countries to stop shipping arms and other military equipment to South Africa. During the earlier debate the

Outdoor Recreation Planning Grants Given Wisconsin, Nebraska

WASHINGTON (AP) — Grants to assist Nebraska and Wisconsin prepare statewide outdoor recreation plans were announced Tuesday.

Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall said each state will match the federal grant. The grants include retroactive payments for work already completed.

Nebraska will receive $13,000 and Wisconsin $7,500. Wisconsin's proposed statewide plan, for which the grant will cover part of the cost, has been submitted to the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation and is now being reviewed.

U.S. representative on the committee, Rep. Barratt O'Hara, D-Ill., told the group his government would continue to support the arms boycott voted by the Security Council. He said the United States had lost $435 million in arms sales by respecting the two-year-old embargo.

Arms Embargo

Lord Caradon of Britain denounced South Africa's apartheid policy but said his government was not prepared to "go beyond the arms embargo which we have already imposed."

In Heidelberg, South Africa, South African Defense Minister Jim Fouché said his government expects the Western powers to supply antiaircraft missiles to protect the Simonstown naval base on the southern tip of Africa.

The base, considered a key to wartime control of Indian Ocean shipping routes, was British until 1957 and Britain is guaranteed use of it. Fouché said the South Africa government continually receives requests from the Western powers to use the facilities at Simonstown and other South African harbors, and the government therefore expects them to supply the means to defend these ports and installations.

Backers Push Rothwell To Head Committee On Higher Education

New Post Expected to be Most Important in State Schooling

MADISON — Significant support is gathering for the selection of Angus Rothwell, state superintendent of public instruction, for the position of chief of staff of the reorganized Coordinating Committee for Higher Education, reliable and informed sources indicated today.

Rothwell is reportedly getting more support for the appointment, regarded as the most important administrative office in Wisconsin tax-supported education, than any of the many other candidates, active and potential, who have yet been mentioned.

The Committee is expected to come to a decision about the appointment soon. Its next meeting has been scheduled for Jan. 16. Its executive committee will meet in Milwaukee Thursday night, and presumably will review the names of the suggested candidates.

Not a Candidate

Rothwell is not a candidate for the appointment, according to reliable representations, and yesterday declined comment on the possibility that the assignment will be offered to him.

But Committee sources have indicated that his name has attracted most favorable attention thus far, in part because of his rank and prestige as the most experienced top figure in Wisconsin education at all levels, his stature as a twice-elected head of the state public school supervisory system, his lack of identity with partisan politics during his long professional career, and his lack of direct identity with the sometimes competitive attitudes of the various institutions under the wing of the Coordinating Committee.

As informally discussed by the Committee thus far, the job of director of the CCHHE would be established in salary terms high enough to make it clear that it is the ranking assignment in publicly supported higher education. Some published reports have said that the Committee may offer a salary as high as $40,000, which would put the pay above that of the president of the University of Wisconsin and make it the ranking office in the state government in terms of money.

Labor Fears For Success Of Union Bill

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Despite assurances from President Johnson, organized labor leaders say they are running scared in their drive in Congress to wipe out state laws that ban union-shop contracts.

Top AFL-CIO officers publicly voice no doubts that Johnson will live up to his pledge to push for repeal of Section 14B of the Taft-Hartley Act.

But privately they are worried that lukewarm administration support may mean defeat of the repeal fight for the foreseeable future.

Section 14B permits the states to outlaw union-shop contracts under which all employees must join the union. Nineteen states have such laws. The union shop is legal under the federal labor law in the 31 other states which do not specifically prohibit it.

With Congress due to convene next month, labor leaders say they still have no firm commitment from administration leaders on when the repeal bill will be brought up in the Senate or how hard Democratic leaders will fight to crush a renewed Republican filibuster that sidetracked the bill this year.

"It's just not there," one labor spokesman said when asked whether union leaders had such a commitment.

Gunmen Elude Police in Loan Office Holdup

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Two gunmen, their faces masked with handkerchiefs, held up a loan office Tuesday and fled with $360, barely eluding police summoned by a telephone call.

A Local Loan Co. employee, James R. Foley, 26, was talking on the telephone when the gunmen entered. Foley told the other person to call the police. The two men, armed with revolvers, ordered six employees and three customers into a back store room and fled after rifling two cash drawers.

"The police missed them by seconds. They had no sooner run out than the police were at the door," said the firm's manager, Richard D. Edwards.

From 75 to 100 area high school students and other interested persons are expected to attend the conference at the Center.

Davidson received his doctorate degree from the University of Wisconsin and has taught there since 1956. In 1962 he became associate dean.

He has published papers on traffic engineering in several journals and from 1953 to 1956 served as a State Highway Commission traffic engineer in charge of special research projects. Davidson has also served as a Madison city alderman, a member and past president of the Madison library board and as a member of the Madison traffic commission and the Madison board of estimates.

Panel Discussion
Also on the Engineers' Night agenda will be a panel of local engineers representing various fields of engineering. Panelists will be Robert W. Bues, Appleton public works director; L. M. Stoll, staff gas engineer for Wisconsin Public Service Corp.; J. K. Babbitt, assistant vice president of Wisconsin Michigan Power Co.; S. J. Baisch, president of S. J. Baisch Associates, Inc., consulting engineers, and F. John Barlow, president of Asco, Inc., mechanical contractors.

Representing the Fox Valley Center on the program will be Russell Johnson, engineering drawing; Colby V. Ardis, engineering mechanics; Walter Sadler, mathematics; Robert E. Powless, Center adviser to students, and Robert E. Najem, Center dean.

The Fox River Valley chapter of the Wisconsin Society of Professional Engineers is sponsoring Engineers' Night jointly with the Center.

The conference is open to the public.

Grade Christmas Concert Planned At Little Chute

LITTLE CHUTE — A children's Christmas concert, with every child in the St. John Grade School performing, will be held at 8 p.m. Dec. 16 in the St. John High School gymnasium.

Tickets for the event will be sent home with the school children. The program will demonstrate all the musical activities in the grade school, including singing and instrumental activities. Plans call for some community singing of Christmas carols.

The boys' choir, under the direction of the Rev. LeRoy Hogen, will sing several numbers and the 30-member string orchestra and 20-wind ensemble group will offer selections. The orchestra is instructed by Sister John Bosco.

Ministry of Laity'

Religion, Daily Life Is Church Parley Theme

CHICAGO — What does the Christian religion have to do with the everyday life of ordinary men and women in today's highly mobile, increasingly complex society? Protestant and Orthodox church members from throughout the United States and Canada will meet here Jan. 13-16 in an attempt to give at least tentative answers to this most searching of all questions facing the church in our secular age.

Some 400 laymen from all walks of life are expected to attend the North American Conference on the Ministry of the Laity in the World, the second of its kind ever held on this continent. Like the first at Buffalo, N.Y. in 1952 this event is sponsored jointly by the National Council of Churches (N.C.C.) and the Canadian Council of Churches.

Throughout the world, and especially in postwar Europe, the Christian church is laying ever greater stress on the ministerial functions of its lay members as they live out their lives beyond the structures of the church itself—when Sunday's worship is over and Monday's work has begun.

Life, Faith Inseparable

"The entire spectrum of jobs and social contracts is inseparable from Christian faith in the lives of those who profess it," said the Rev. Dr. Cameron P. Hall, director of the N.C.C. Commission on the Church and Economic Life and administrator of the forthcoming conference.

"The meeting's purpose is threefold: to shore up ecumenical gains, to study and interpret the implications of revolutionary change in today's world for the ongoing ministry of lay people, and to propose new directions for the church in behalf of a more effective lay ministry," Dr. Hall said, announcing the conference today.

The conference will issue a message—written "by laymen and for laymen"—together with reports from a number of "occupational groups" in which members of specific professions and trades will gather to explore concrete applications of the Christian faith to their everyday working lives.

Whereas all delegates will debate and vote on the general conference message in plenary session, they will simply hear the occupational group reports without action, Dr. Hall said.

"A complete listing of these groups will be unavailable until all registrations are in," he added. Occupational categories represented in similar groups at the Buffalo conference in 1952 ranged from lawyers and scientists to homemakers.

World Council Chairman

Klaus Von Bismarck of Cologne, Germany, executive director of the West German Broadcasting Co. and chairman of the World Council of Churches' Department of the Laity, will address a conference dinner on Jan. 13, following greetings from the presidents of the National and Canadian Councils of Churches.

"Herr Von Bismarck is doubly qualified to speak to American church members on the subject of lay ministry," Dr. Hall said.

"Not only does he hold a key office in the World Council of Churches specifically charged with this responsibility, but also, as a German layman, he can speak with authority on the world's most advanced system of lay organizations."

In a series of three daily presentations, Bishop Stephen F. Bayne Jr., New York City, director of the Protestant Episcopal Church's Overseas Department, will outline the theological and biblical foundations for the ministry of lay men and women in the world beyond the church.

Another daily series of lectures and presentations on the "social consequences of a revolutionary world" will cover the current state of revolution in technology, education and international relations.

Night Usage Of KHS Library May be Extended

KAUKAUNA — Student use of the Kaukauna High School library facilities during evening hours has been very good and it is likely the board of education will be asked to continue the policy, according to Roger Jaeger, librarian.

The student council, earlier this year, requested night library hours and it was approved by the board of education on a trial basis. Other teachers devoting an evening toward library supervision are Roy Wentzel and Bernard Hupperts.

Since some expense to the school board is involved, the program was established on a temporary basis in an effort to ascertain whether the usage warranted cost.

Evening hours make it possible for more students to make

New York Firm May be Polluting Vermont Air

BURLINGTON, Vt. (AP) — A two-day conference will open here next week to consider whether a New York State factory is polluting air in nearby Vermont.

The Health, Education and Welfare Department said in Washington that a public hearing would be held Nov. 30 and Dec. 1 to determine whether alleged air pollution originates from a pulp and paper mill in Ticonderoga, N.Y.

Early Health Problems Didn't Trouble Borman

MANNED SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — The F80 jet darted through the sky into a steep, routine dive. The young pilot, Frank Borman, suddenly felt a sharp, jabbing pain in his left ear.

He landed safely at Nellis Air Force Base, Nev., only to find that his eardrum had broken. To a pilot, this could be as disastrous as a baseball pitcher with a sore arm.

Borman was grounded and could not even ride in an airplane. Dejected, he feared he might never fly again, especially after doctors also found a calcium deposit inside the broken drum.

Seven months later, though, in May, 1962, the eardrum had healed; the calcium had dissolved. Once again he went on flying status.

Now, Borman, a quick-witted Air Force lieutenant colonel, is command pilot on the 14-day Gemini 7 space mission, considered by space officials as the most important spaceflight in the program's history.

He has not always been the picture of health he is today—a trim 5-foot-10, 163 pounder.

"It proves one thing," the 37-year-old Indiana native says. "You don't have to be a perfect physical specimen to be an astronaut."

Borman, a 1950 graduate of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, became a member of the space team in September, 1962, with the second group of astronauts, as did his pilot on Gemini 7, Navy Cmdr. James A. Lovell Jr.

Medical Problems
Borman's medical problems began when he was a young boy in Gary, Ind., his birthplace. He suffered sinus, mastoid, tonsil and adenoid difficulties.

When he was 5, his parents moved to the dry, warm Tucson, Ariz., climate on the suggestion of a doctor. The youngster's medical troubles disappeared, and he emerged as the quarterback on a high school team that won the state football championship.

"I wouldn't have ever gotten to play if the first string quarterback hadn't broken his arm," he recalls. A smile creased his broad, tanned face. "Then at West Point I tried to play, but I didn't make the grade—so I became the team manager."

Love for Airplanes
His love for airplanes developed early and he says, his first dreams of someday traveling in space came when the Soviet Union launched the first Sputnik satellite in 1957.

Like all astronauts, Borman has a specialty in the program—he is a member of the astronaut crew safety team and a specialist in rocket propulsion.

Father of two sons, Frederick, 14, and Edwin, 12, Borman is married to the former Susan Bugbee of Tucson and is an Episcopalian. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Borman, live in Phoenix, Ariz.

Ky Making Mark as Vietnamese Leader

Few Expected Success When General Took Over 6 Months Ago

By PETER ARNETT

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — In a country where good government has come to mean any government that can survive for more than just a few weeks, Premier Nguyen Cao Ky has made something of a mark.

By mid-December he will have held power for six months. Few expected this when he took over the government in mid-June as the front man for the group of "Young Turk" generals who wield the real power in South Viet Nam.

The civilian government that preceded Ky collapsed under the weight of political rivalry and bickering.

Many thought that Ky, 35, who as Vietnamese air force commander cut a dashing figure in the skies and on the boulevards of Saigon, was a political amateur. He was expected either to soon tire of the rigors of premiership and resign, or get edged out in the back-room byplay of military politics.

Avoids Politics

Ky hasn't tired of politics, mainly because he doesn't play them. He has no mandate from the people. Ky rules by decree and with the approval of the generals in the back room. The generals have made it clear that as long as Ky wants the job of premier he can have it — as long as he doesn't step on their toes.

Ky, in a series of public speeches and decrees, has attempted to force industry and honesty upon his war-weary and politically disillusioned nation.

Early in his reign he proclaimed austerity measures, broke off diplomatic relations with France and officially declared war on the Viet Cong guerrillas.

American Mission

But after six months, it is Ky's record time in office, rather than what he has done, that distinguishes his regime.

When he became premier, the American mission in Viet Nam did not seem concerned about whether he was good, bad or indifferent.

In 20 months, between the overthrow and murder of President Ngo Dinh Diem and the appointment of Ky, Viet Nam had gone through three coup d'etats, four attempted coups, and 19 government reshuffles.

U.S. policy was to get a government of stability, and stability was equated with survival. "We'll take anyone, as long as he stays there," one official was quoted as saying at the time.

Ky has stayed put. But he started from rock bottom, and the shadow of the war has darkened all his actions.

The political problem for the United States in Viet Nam has not been to get a democratic government. That wish can be realized only far in the future.

The main problem was to get an effective government. Ky has these actions to his credit so far:

He has gathered around him a group of young ministers and aides who talk enthusiastically about South Viet Nam's future, and who are prepared to listen to American "elder statesman" advice about government, notably from U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge.

Ky is not a military dictator. He is chief spokesman and executive leader of a nine-man national leadership committee of the top generals. This group has presented a united military front for the first time, stilling religious and student opposition to central authority. Ky does not intend to suffer the fate of the former strongman, Gen. Nguyen Khanh, who was destroyed because civilian opposition penetrated the chinks of the armor of the military group supporting him. Ky has no chinks.

Ky improved the morale of the armed forces by raising their pay 40 per cent and liberalizing promotions. Whether these measures will counteract the impact of morale from a recent Communist attacks remains to be seen.

Ky has attempted to come to grips with the problems of rural pacification by introducing a land reform program, and training cadres to work among villagers. The reform program has hadly gotten off the ground because much of the land he is giving away is in the hands of the Viet Cong. And Ky is finding it as difficult as his predecessors to get people interested enough in working in the villages on pacification projects.

Government Brakes Rising Taxi Total

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — The state government has put the brakes to Rio's mushrooming taxi population.

With 18,000 taxis jockeying for fares on Rio's crowded streets, Gov. Carlos Lacerda has issued an order to block the licensing of new taxis in the city-state of Guanabara which covers Rio de Janeiro and its suburbs.

Ky has attempted to improve his image at home and abroad by traveling and by sending his attractive wife, Mai, to charity functions and hospitals. But Ky has found that popularity is elusive. To Vietnamese living outside the cities, Ky is just another name. Vietnamese have become cynical about their leaders and don't seem to take them seriously. Ky has yet to spark much enthusiasm.

He has attempted to tackle some major problems. One of these is corruption, a permanent cancer within Vietnamese officialdom.

His record on this so far is good. Ky has followed up public statements with action. One province chief had connections with top generals but made the mistake of openly antagonizing and intimidating the U.S. aid mission. The U.S. mission withdrew aid from the province to force Ky's hand. After a cliff-hanging few weeks, Ky fired the province chief.

The corruption problem remains a big one. Even Ky himself is accused of it, but not because of any proven acts. The Vietnamese remember the recent slayer of the corruption dragon, Gen. Khanh — whom the new government accused of getting away with millions of dollars of U.S. aid money.

Ideals Distant

The longer the war lasts, the farther away these ideals will seem for the Vietnamese people. Ky's main job will be to convince his weary people that his promises will bear better fruit than the promises made by dollars of U.S. aid money.

No preparations have been made for any transfer of political power from the military, and Viet Nam can expect Ky to remain premier as long as he wants or until some new power alignment takes place in the military junta. This last seems far off.

Ky and the U.S. mission in Saigon have spoken vaguely about elections in a couple of years, but this seems just a sop to the Saigon intellectuals. The experiment with civilian government in the past two years failed because of the power realities in Viet Nam. The military is the only cohesive power here.

In the long run, the measure of the Ky government will not be the patriotic statements and dramatic decrees that he issues. These are made as war swirls around his head and as the whole identity of his nation is shadowed by a wave of U.S. troops and equipment.

"The measure of his government will be in the distance it moves toward providing Vietnamese with all the things that we say we are fighting for," one American observed.

The longer the war lasts, the farther away these ideals will seem for the Vietnamese people. Ky's main job will be to convince his weary people that his promises will bear better fruit than the promises made by the Communists.

That is a job the United States is also trying to shoulder in Viet Nam.

State School System Opens Branch Campus

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — The first of what will probably be an extensive series of branch campuses of the state university system will enroll its first classes at Rice Lake in the fall of 1967.

A committee of the Board of Regents of State Colleges has recommended that the Rice Lake freshman-sophomore center of the state university system will be attached to Stout State University at Menominee.

Another extension campus at Richland Center is being planned for the fall of 1967 and will be attached to Wisconsin State University-Platteville. In succeeding years there will be other branches of other institutions in the state university system, according to an emerging blueprint of the Coordinating Committee for Higher Education which calls for a development that will parallel the older system of extension centers of the University of Wisconsin at Madison.

A unique feature of the Rice Lake institution in the northwestern part of the state will be the opportunity provided for the first test of the so-called "community college" idea.

which embraces instruction in liberal arts and job-related or vocational subjects under a single roof. Stout University specializes in domestic science and industrial arts, and is one of the major training institutions in the middlewest in those fields. The Coordinating Committee has called for other ventures of such dual purposes, and has suggested Rhinelander and Wisconsin Rapids as suitable locations.

The state college regents will meet here next week, and are regarded as certain to ratify the Rice Lake school attachment to Stout for faculty service and administrative purposes. The Barron County Board has approved a bond issue of $1,500,000 for the construction of facilities, but they won't be available until a later year. Classes next fall will be held in what is now the county teachers' college building and many of the students now enrolled as freshmen there are expected to enroll as sophomores in the new school next year. First enrollment is likely to be about 225, according to preliminary surveys, with the provision expected to follow the provision of additional plant in future years.

Waive Retirement Age For Kaukauna Worker

Heated Argument Precedes Move to Extend Job of Ceil Ryan, City Stenographer

KAUKAUNA — After a heated floor fight Tuesday night, the city council voted 6-3 to recertify a city employee who is beyond retirement age. One alderman was absent.

Ald. George Simon, (3rd), supported a finance committee recommendation to enforce mandatory retirement at age 65 for Ceil Ryan, city stenographer. He said Miss Ryan had been recertified in previous years, but felt it was time to end this practice. He said no city in the area allowed it and, disregarding personalities, felt since the rule was on city books, it should be enforced.

Savings To City
Replacing the employee also could result in a $1,000 salary savings to the city, said Simon. Rather than vote on recertification, Simon asked that action be withheld until a full 10-member council was present.

Ald. William Rogers, (5th), led the fight against the finance committee recommendation and asked for a roll call vote. He didn't feel a full council was necessary and indicated a check with Neenah, DePere and Appleton revealed these municipalities also recertified employees beyond retirement age.

Ald. Russell Dix, (4th), questioned the wording of city rules on mandatory retirement and felt the $1,000 savings was not an issue since the city "threw money away on other things." He did not elaborate.

Simon's motion to defer action until a full council was present lost 7-2 after which Rogers' motion to recertify the employee was passed 6-3.

Mayor Joseph Bayorgeon lauded the council for finally resolving the issue.

Library Recommendation
Aldermen then voted to refer a recommendation of the finance committee, which would have permitted the library board to hire an architect to prepare plans for a new library, back to the committee and planning commission.

Simon said further study was needed since the proposed plan to tear down the old library to new site for a library might be the answer rather than tearing down the existing building.

The engineer and city attorney were instructed to secure necessary easements to install sanitary sewer at 12th Street and Kenneth Avenue.

The city clerk was authorized to advertise a Public Service Commission hearing at 9 a.m. Jan. 6 in the council chambers dealing with installation of warning devices on Chicago and North Western Railway Co. of tracks on Main Avenue and Lawe Street.

Ald. Dix felt a large ad was needed to inform city residents so that they can appear at the hearing and make their wishes known on the need for additional safety devices.

A letter from Thilmany Pulp and Paper Co. asking that safety lanes be painted on curves and for adequate sanding of Elm Street roadway to Thilmany roadway was referred to the street department foreman for action.

The city engineer was instructed to advertise for applications for sewage plant operator. The police chief and board of public works president were authorized to install "no parking" signs on property on County Trunk 00 near a veterinary clinic.

Children in the Christmas Spotlight

Pankratz displays her prize, a doll, and Robert J. Olson sits on the sled he won. At right, models Kathy and Scott Cloud, children of Mr. and Mrs. Dan E. Cloud, prepare to go on stage (Post-Crescent Photos)

Saturday was special for many Fox Valley youngsters, for they joined their mothers at Butte des Morts Golf Club for a dessert and style show. And what could be more fun than going to a very nice afternoon party all dressed up!!

It was a day for children in the truest sense. The fashions from Shirley's Children Apparel were strictly for their set. Prizes were awarded to the three top winners in the "What Christmas Means to Me" contest sponsored as part of the St. Nicholas Show and Tea and Albert from the "Here's Albert" television show was present to add his special spark to the festivities.

Miss Bethann Bonner, age 9, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Bonner, was an essay winner who wrote, "Christmas means Christ's birthday. I think everything in Heaven gets together and has a big birthday party. We here on earth get the gifts." Five-year-old winner, Wendy Pankratz, wrote that Christmas means "... our tree. I'm thankful for toys, 'cooking' cookies, leaving apples for the reindeer and cookies for Santa, and we eat at 'Sweetie' and Grandpa's house." Her parents are Mr. and James Pankratz.

The third winner, Robert J. Olson, 3, said "Santa Claus likes me. Santa Claus will give me a kiss. Santa Claus will give me some toys. Santa is my friend." He is the son of the Tharlie Olsons.

The annual event was sponsored by the Chalice Circle of The King's Daughters. Proceeds, deposited in the circle's Benefit Fund, will be donated to Appleton Memorial and St. Elizabeth Hospital's pediatric wards and other needy children projects in Appleton.

Patrick and Tom Dercks, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dercks, engage in conversation with Mrs. Lyle Bau-necht and Mrs. Charles Reichert at the St. Nicholas Style Show and tea.

Home Accident Research Exposes Danger to Tots

When you cook your family's next evening meal, beware. The hours before dinner can be a pressure cooker of danger to your youngsters.

That's when the "late afternoon syndrome" of home accidents strikes. Researchers say the hours from 4 to 6 p.m. are the time of day when accidents are more likely to occur in the home, especially to pre-school children.

Everyday home situations accidentally kill 6,000 youngsters annually and injure a million more.

Hazards Shown
Filmed in cooperation with The Children's Hospital Medical Center, Boston, a public service film, "Toddler's Hours," illustrates emotional stresses in the hectic day of one typical family that explode into near tragedy for the toddler of the household. The movie focuses on the following eight major accident-producing situations and suggestions for overcoming them.

The hungry child. A hungry child will try to eat anything—including poisons. Forget the clock and feed the child when he is hungry. If he is especially hungry during the dangerous hours before the evening meal, give him a snack, even if it means delaying your dinner. It could prevent a needless accident.

Need For Sleep
Fatigue. A tired child is more accident prone and a tired mother is less capable of preventing accidents. Forget rigid nap schedules. When fatigue sets in, take naps.

Over-active child. Continuing close supervision is the best safety answer for the quick-moving youngster.

Ill or pregnant mother. When the mother is "out of sorts" she should perform only essential duties and rest as much as possible.

New Dangers on Trips
Vacationing family. Children often need closer supervision than usual when in a strange environment away from home.

Unreliable babysitter. Children's accidents rise when babysitters neglect their responsibilities. Be sure your babysitter is reliable.

Quarreling parents. Accidents are high in families in which parents argue frequently, especially in front of children.

Youngsters are upset by their parents' quarrels. Try to keep arguments to a minimum and then out of hearing of the children.

Rapidly developing child. Never underestimate your child's abilities. Parents whose children have been hurt in accidents frequently say, "He never did that before." Anticipate your toddler's ability to climb, walk, and "get into things."

Honeymoon In South

St. John United Church of Christ was the scene Saturday of the wedding of Miss Carole Mae Carlson and Joseph C. Herman. The Rev. John Seidler officiated at the 2 p.m. double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Carlson, and Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Herman, all of Dorchester.

Honor attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Rankl, the bride's sister and brother-in-law.

After a reception at Alex's Supper Club, the newlyweds left on a trip to the southern states. They will return to 2424 S. Madison St., where he has been living.

The bridegroom, a graduate of Barbers' Technical School, Green Bay, is employed at Wally's Barber Shop.

He wouldn't wear a good business suit when he's out whacking golf balls, duck hunting, tinkering with his sports car, or putting in his garden.

And he shouldn't wear his $100 watch for these things either. What he needs is a sturdy everyday watch to knock about in. Inexpensive. But not cheap.

Our Caravelle® watches cost only $10.95 to $29.95.

But they have jeweled-lever movements (all working jewels). Precision parts, an unbreakable mainspring, stainless steel back, waterproofing* and shock-resistance.

Sound cheap? Not to a watchmaker. Or anybody.

And there's another way for you to judge our Caravelles. By the name on the box and on the guarantee.

Girl Will 'Always Wonder' About Child She Gave Up

BY JEAN OTTO

Post-Crescent Women's Editor

We arrived at the same time on an early autumn evening at the Children's Service Society office in Neenah. The girl rang the bell and we exchanged uncertain smiles. Without either being positive who the other was, we gauged each other's mettle.

She was 20, tall and long legged, with short natural curls waving around her face. Her figure was good, her carriage erect, her head high. Her direct, unclouded gaze did not deceive me into thinking this was not the girl who had had a baby out of wedlock, the girl I was to interview.

A few minutes later she and I had formally met. We began to talk, with the caseworker on hand to help or explain when he was needed. The girl spoke freely of her experience. She hopes she has learned from it and wishes no one else had to go through her ordeal.

I never learned her real name or city, tho' I called her Kathy. Names don't matter. She would have been just as real, just as human by any title. Unwed mothers, however they may add up as statistics, are still people, and the babies they bear are human beings. No matter how the figures count, they are only important in that they represent people.

Wouldn't Know

No one would guess from looking at Kathy, at her youth, her vibrancy and her control, that just a year ago she had given birth to a strong, healthy son, and that she had given her baby to someone else—to love and be loved by.

Looking back, Kathy says she went through it all as if in a dream. She recalls being more concerned for her parents than herself. A senior in high school, she waited five months before she told her parents she was pregnant. By then it was mid-May, only a few weeks until graduation.

Told Father

When she finally decided someone had to know, she chose the noon hour to tell her father. She remembers that, when she managed to get out the words, he told her not to worry. "I'll take care of you." He was hurt that she had waited so long to tell him. That afternoon when her mother came home from work she seemed to sense something was wrong. Three talked that evening, and her father told her the next day that parental discussion went on long into the night.

A few days later Kathy's parents went with her to Children's Service.

The baby's father, Kathy said, was married and she had broken up with him in December, before learning she was pregnant. While they were dating he'd told her he was separated from his wife, nos she's not sure he was. When she learned she was pregnant, she was determined he wouldn't know. She avoided him and he didn't find out until he received a letter from Kathy's lawyer regarding his financial responsibility for her care and the baby's.

Kathy's first problem was continuing to conceal her condition from school authorities until after graduation. She did show her pregnancy, she says, and there were lots of rumors. She never confirmed them. She held her head high when she walked down the hall, though she was sure everyone was looking at her.

With graduation behind her, Kathy spent long hours with a caseworker, discussing her life and trying to find out how she felt and why she had become pregnant. A year after the birth of the child, Kathy says she still likes the father and believes he would have divorced his wife except that she too became pregnant. If he were not married now she would probably go out with him, though she doubts, without bitterness, that she would marry him.

Honest Answers

As we talked, the shouts of picnicking children came through the open window. Kathy was relaxed, thinking before she spoke, striving for honesty in her answers. She had obviously searched for answers before, and, while some things were clear, problems were still not solved.

'Two Islands'

She spoke of her family, describing it as two islands — in the beginning, her older sister and father aligned against mother and younger son. Kathy, a middle child, floated in limbo, belonging to no one. After her sister was married, Kathy moved into her spot in the family relationship.

There is little closeness in her family, Kathy says. Her mother works all day and her father all night. When they disagree, they do not discuss differences, they yell. Kathy says she has constantly been tugged from one to the other, not for her own sake, but for the effect on the other parent.

As obviously bright as she is, Kathy has never been permitted to grow up...to make her own decisions. Her mother buys her clothes. If Kathy chooses something, there is always a flaw in it. Everything she does is subject to criticism. If she is home, she's embroiled in argument. If she is gone, she should be home.

Sought Security

Kathy thinks she chose an older man to date because she needed and wanted someone of her own, someone who could give her a feeling of security.

She stayed in her own home all through pregnancy. She didn't hide, but she says she didn't go out much either. The pregnancy may have created a slightly better relationship with her parents, but Kathy says she still is not accepted as an adult by her mother. She is treated as a child, and, in her attempt to wriggle free from this child role, Kathy feels she may actually have tried to replace herself by creating another child. In any case, as hard as it was for her mother to accept her daughter's pregnancy, she wanted to keep the baby.

Her Own Decision

Kathy made the decision to give her child for adoption.

Her parents went to the hospital with her when it was time and her mother stayed. The delivery was easy and the only time Kathy saw her son was at his birth. She stayed in the hospital six days. She was released in the morning. In the afternoon a caseworker came to take the baby to a foster home.

It didn't seem unreal for her to leave the hospital empty-handed, Kathy says. The baby was real...it was hers. It is still real today. "But it was never—really mine."

Kathy started college a week late that fall. A month or so later she took a half-day off to go to court. For her it was a simple formality in the judge's chambers, the making of a statement that it was her own decision to give the child up and signing its custody over to the Children's Service Society. This waiting period after birth is usually insisted upon by judges, so that the mother has ample opportunity to consider her decision.

No Question

For Kathy, there was never any question of keeping the baby. She wants him to have a better life than she could give him.

Kathy says she often meets girls she went to high school with, girls pushing baby buggies and explaining that they "had" to get married. Their attitude is "so what?", Kathy says. The unmarried mother with the "so what?" attitude would find herself in trouble again and again. Kathy says emotions in check and not ask how marriage after the fact makes everything all right.

She's determined it will never happen again. It's easier to say "no" because of her experience.

In the back of her mind, and in the front, Kathy says it's sometimes hard to hold she wants to get married and have children. Then she tells herself, "No, not now. Now only have fun. As everyone says, marriage is not what you thought it was after you're married a while."

Trying to Leave

With the insight gained from her experience, Kathy realizes she is again living in the same emotional climate that caused her to seek pregnancy as an "out" before. She is fighting with herself, trying to break away but not certain she could make it alone. She has a car, pays room and board, holds a job and pays for her own schooling. She wants it that way. Then, if she quits or makes bad grades, no one can say it's a waste of money.

What Kathy has learned in the last year is far more important than anything she'll ever get in a classroom. She's doing some serious thinking about her future, about marriage. Her baby, she says, was part of her. When she marries and has a child, she will know it is not her first. She will always wonder about that other...the one she gave to someone else. He will always be part of her...a whole year of her life.

How To Tell

She dreads the decision about if and when and how to tell the man she'll some day marry. Yet she's sure she will tell him. If he can't take it, she'll have to face it and live with it for she knows she couldn't make him happy if the knowledge stood between them. If he can't love her as she is, his love will not endure. She's seeking now to know what love is. Marriage, she says, is always adjusting. It's never easy.

Kathy came by her knowledge the hard way. If she could help anyone in the position she was in a year ago go through it with less pain, she would. She advises the unmarried girl who finds herself pregnant to think seriously about whether or not she should marry the baby's father. If she is young her parents will probably try to force a marriage. Then, in a few years, divorce will make life even more difficult, both for her and her child. If a girl feels she can live the rest of her life with the man, only then, should she marry him.

Not Alone

After deciding, she should talk to her parents, and hope they help. Then, Kathy advises, go to an agency. It's a time for someone who is objective, who can help a girl see things as they are. There is no pressure on you to make up your mind, Kathy says. You do that yourself. But if anything happens, someone is standing there.

Going to an agency relieves the pregnant girl of the enormity of her burden. After the decision about the baby has been made, the actual pregnancy and delivery are easier, just for knowing details are taken care of. If she had it to do over again, Kathy says, she'd like more time with the agency after the birth, to talk over the "whys." While the physical problem has been solved, the real problems remain. She points to herself, saying she still cannot break from her parents. "Cutting the cord with help is different from cutting it alone."

Better Education

Kathy believes girls need better sex education. She says she actually didn't know how she got pregnant, in spite of the sex education in school. They never go far enough, she says. Parents should sit and explain the entire process to a child. Her parents never told her one word about sex. Possibly because their own relationship was unsatisfactory, she says, they couldn't talk about it.

Now and then Kathy says she has the impulse to talk about her baby. Married friends will comment on how much their babies weighed, and she has to check herself from "comparing notes".

She finds herself thinking more about the baby now than right after his birth, when the need was to push the entire experience from her mind. She wonders what he's called and how he looks. She doesn't doubt for a minute that he's loved.

When she has another, Kathy says, it will be her own, but even as he grows, she will wonder what it would have been like with the first one.

More Help

Kathy feels that followup help from an agency is needed. After the birth, she says, a girl feels pushed out, all alone, as if no one cares. This is why it happens again, because then someone does care, at least for a while. An agency can help when the girl returns to her normal situation, sometimes facing the same pressures from the same man she still cares about, or a home situation that has become even worse.

No Help For Old Mirrors

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN

Q: What can I do to restore a mirrored surface which has now become slightly hazy? I'm referring to the glass, not the silvering.

A: Nothing, settle for a out as possible, which will tique glass will begin to revert to its original make-up, and this hazy appearance is the result. If there is a sure, I don't know it. Neither do three good friends in the antique business. However, if any reader knows differently, I'll surely appreciate hearing.

Q: Please tell me why I should have weatherstripping if I already have storm sash, as a neighbor informs me.

A: I'm with your neighbor. The storm sash prevents the escape of warm air through the window glass to the cold outdoors. Also keeps the cold air from being conducted through the glass. In this way, the windows won't steam up or become frosted. Weatherstripping has another job. By sealing all around the edges of the windows, it effectively prevents these normally vulnerable areas. In the Southwest desert area, where sandstorms are all too frequent, weatherstripping keeps the major part of the sand from working inside.

Grand Officers Attend Knights of Pythias Party

Child, 21 Months, Too Old to Be Rocked to Sleep at Bedtime

BY DR. EVE JONES

Dear Dr. Jones: My 21-month-old daughter wants to take all of her toys into her crib. Also,

Jones she wants to be rocked to sleep, and I can hardly manage with all those toys in her arms.

Is there any solution? If I take away some of her toys, she holds her breath until she's blue and then keeps crying for half an hour or more, even while I'm rocking her. Every night, she wakes up three or four times, and I have to rock her back to sleep. My husband can't stand to hear her cry.

She goes to bed at 9:30 p.m. and sleeps until after 8:30 a.m., then has a two-hour nap in the afternoon. I'd like to have more relaxation in the evening, and I could do that if I could put her to bed at 8 p.m., but she puts up a big fuss if I try to put her to bed this early. Is there any way I can get her to stop fussing?

be receiving any healthy benefit from being rocked to sleep—that makes sense only for young infants who haven't yet learned to creep or crawl. So stop the rocking, both at bedtime and in the middle of the night.

A reasonable bedtime for a child your daughter's age is 7 or 7:30 p.m., so put her to bed at that time. Let her have as many toys as she wants in her crib, and give her a nightlight she can keep on, too, as well as a snack of a few crackers and some water near her bed for her to eat when she gets hungry.

Tuck her in, kiss her goodnight, then leave.

If she fusses, go to her and tell her you're sorry she's unhappy and you hope she'll quiet down soon, but that it's her bedtime and you won't come back to her again that evening. Then leave.

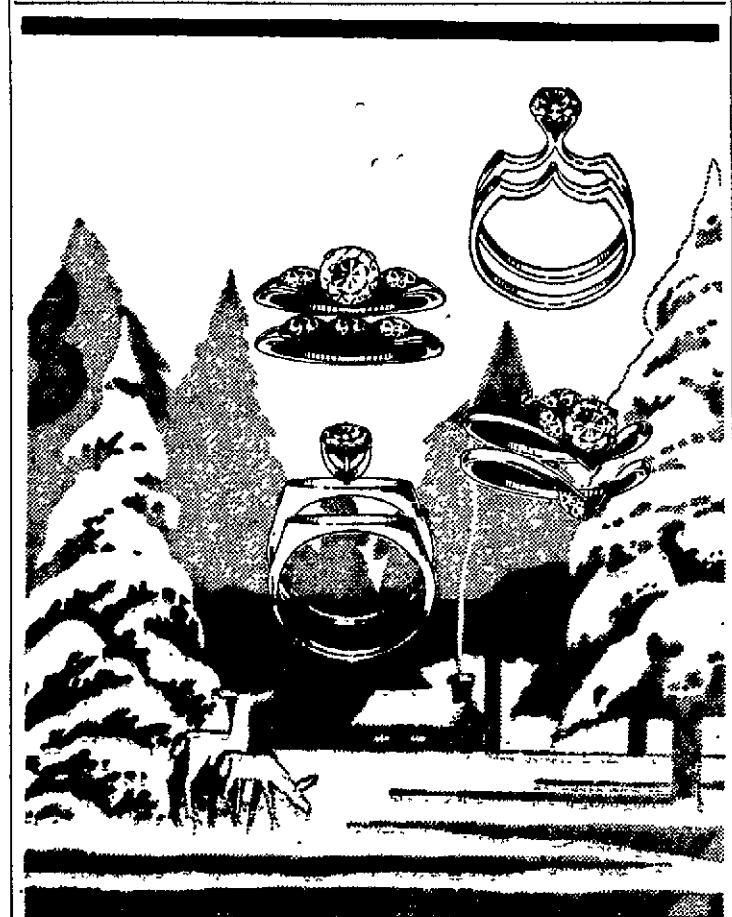

If she gets out of bed, put her back in, without scolding or punishing her. Tell her she may not get out again. Then leave. If she repeats this act, put her back and close her door so she can't get out of her room again.

She isn't likely to protest for longer than an hour the first evening you practice this sensible routine. And she isn't likely to cry at all after the third or fourth evening. As soon as she realizes she's in bed to stay until morning, not to be taken to her mother's room, she's likely to sleep soundly through the night, too.

If your husband can't tolerate listening to her cry, ask him to take a walk or go for a visit. If necessary, have him stay away from home for a few nights entirely, until you get your daughter back on the right track. Once your husband realizes you won't let his sensitivities force you to spoil your daughter, he's likely to operate more sensibly, too.

For a copy of her pamphlet, "The Facts of Life for Your Pro-

Mustache Is Beauty Mask; Man Can't See Girl Under It

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Phoebe on you for your reply to the young man who asked what to do about his girl friend, a brilliant young psychology major who had everything — including a mustache.

You said he ought to suggest that she bleach it or have it removed permanently by a specialist. Your advice was cruel and thoughtless. Excessive hair is a medical problem and should be overlooked. Would you think it good manners to comment on a receding chin or a limp?

If a young woman is brilliant and charming and appeals to the intellect, a mature man should be able to look right past her mustache and see the beauty of her mind and her soul. I am deeply disappointed in you. — Hair Mary

Dear Mary: Sorry I let you down. Doll, but most men can see better than they can think.

True, excessive hair may be the result of a chemical imbalance in the system but that doesn't mean it should be overlooked. A girl who hides a beautiful soul and a brilliant mind behind a mustache makes the treasure hunt unnecessarily difficult for young men who are in search of beautiful souls and brilliant minds.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 22-year-old college student whose world has just crumbled. Last night the 21-year-old girl I'm in love with told me all about herself. I was so ill this morning I couldn't make my 9 a.m. class.

Arietta and I have been going together for six months. She is beautiful, gay and behaves like the model young woman on any campus.

Last night she told me that she had given herself to a boy she went steady with in high school. They had talked about marriage and he persuaded her that she was foolish not to live life to the limit. They went together five months and broke up when he moved to another city.

I thought I wanted to marry Arietta but now I'm not sure. If she was able to fool me so completely will I ever be able to trust her? And how do I know there were not others? Please help me. I'm sick with grief. — Like Dead

Dear Like: Better write off Arietta. The way your mind is operating you'll have her pictured as the town's Number One streetwalker within a week.

Did she ask you for an affidavit of your purity? If so, would you have been able to produce one?

Love is forgiving. It is accepting people for what they are. You are unable to do this, so do both yourself and Arietta a favor and find a white-flower girl. (And lots of luck, Buh.)

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our son Donald is 13 years old. He thinks my husband and I are being unfair because we insist that he take turns with his sister doing the dishes.

Donald says a 13-year-old boy should not be asked to do sissy stuff around the house. He is afraid some of his friends might hear about it and make fun of him.

My husband and I want to be fair. Will you give us your opinion? — Censored

Dear Censored: There is nothing sissy about doing dishes. This is a household chore, just like emptying the trash, making the beds and scrubbing the floors. Chores should be done by both boys and girls without resentment or complaint.

When necking becomes petting, watch out! To learn how the smart girl keeps both her dignity and her boy friend, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Necking and Petting — And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 25 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope. Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope. (Copyright, 1965)

Sheinwold Don't Take Risks if You Have Cinch

BY ALFRED SHEINWOLD
It is quite reasonable to bid a slam that depends on one successful finesse. You don't always have to take that finesse if an opponent discards obligingly.

Declarer took his four spade tricks, discarding a club from dummy. East discarded the deuce of hearts and then the seven of clubs.

South next led a club to dummy's queen and then ran the hearts. Declarer and West each discarded a diamond on the third heart. South threw the ten of clubs next, and West discarded the jack of clubs. Now South went astray by trying the finesse with the jack of diamonds. West took the queen of diamonds and the ace of clubs, defeating the contract. Should Lead Club

Declarer could make sure of the contract at the end by leading a club instead of playing the diamonds. West would have to take the ace of clubs and lead diamonds, thus giving South a free finesse.

West should make things more difficult for South by discarding a second diamond instead of the jack of clubs. South goes down if he leads a club or tries a diamond finesse. Declarer can make the contract if he leads out the king and ace of diamonds, relying on the queen to be unguarded after West's two discards, but this sort of play is easier to talk about than to make at the table.

Daily Question
As dealer, you hold: S Q J 7 2, H Q 10, D A J 7 2, C K 10 4. What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass. You have 13 points in high cards and 1 point for the doubleton, but the hand is not worth an opening bid. The doubleton queen of hearts simply is not worth 3 points. Avoid making an opening bid that depends on counting doubleton queens and jacks at full value.

Learns Dad Didn't Tell All

Gracefully Aging Myth of Someone Recalling From 30

By LEO MARKS

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Reflections of a man nearing 50: or, things my father (who's nearing 80) never taught me:

There's no such thing as growing old gracefully. Whoever coined that must have been in his 30s looking back on his 20s.

Old soldiers don't just fade away. They just keep talking about their military exploits, some of which sound so good with age and repetition that they wish they really had experienced them.

Here's one of mine I remember vividly. My artillery outfit on the Rhine ran out of our regular eight-inch gun ammunition and had to send back to one of the French ports for more. There was none, but they sent us some shells from the cruiser Minneapolis, in port at the time, and we fired those until ours showed up.

Shell Fragments

Can you imagine what the Germans must have thought when they picked up shell fragments painted, "U.S.S. Minneapolis," on the other side of the Rhine?

Shortly after that they surrendered.

And have you noticed lately:

How old politicians never seem to disappear? They keep showing up every Fourth of July. And only you recall who they are?

How much prettier and younger the girls who walk by (without looking at you) anymore seem every year?

Everyone Older

How everyone in the office you've been working with for years suddenly seems older, and a casual stroll over to the corner mirror doesn't exactly vindicate you, either?

And you try sneaking up on the tattletale mirror from another angle, and it's worse?

How your kids treat you with

- Two pieces of enriched dough are shaped into long soft delicate rolls.
- They're twisted gently, reducing air pockets and giving finer texture.
- Twisted dough is placed in pans for slow rising—tightening the twist. This seals in freshness and flavor.

Find Medical Method To Curb Great Height

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A California doctor has described development of a medical method to prevent excessive tallness in children who are genetically destined for such an unwanted abnormality.

Dr. M. James Whitlaw reported to the 19th clinical convention of the American Medical Association that the technique involves uses of steroid — that is, cortisone-like drugs to induce puberty before it would otherwise occur.

Presenting a scientific exhibit on the subject, Dr. Whitlaw described use of the technique in 50 girls. He said it produced a saving of two to six inches in their ultimate theoretical height, depending on when the treatment was started. The girls, at the time treatment began, ranged in age from 8½ to 12 years.

Dr. Whitlaw, of Santa Clara County Hospital, said in his report:

Constant Worry

"The permanent psychic trauma induced by excessive tallness in both sexes, but especially in girls, has received little attention from the medical profession, but is a constant worry to parents, who themselves are exceedingly tall."

"It is unfortunately assumed by most physicians that little or nothing can be done to alter the eventual height of children who are, by hereditary tendency, destined to be abnormally tall."

"I am going to bed," says Nero. He said that the drug therapy telescoped into a year's time the growth pattern that otherwise would have occurred over a 30-month period. That is, there was a speeding up of the normal process of bone growth, for example, but with a reduction in over-all body height as compared with what the final height would have been at the rate of growth before treatment.

No Adverse Effects

He said there was no evidence of adverse emotional or physical side effects due to the treatment itself.

Among other reports to the meeting, presented as scientific exhibits:

1. Successful use of pigskin as a temporary biological dressing for extensive burns; certain types of ulcers; and, in one case, for a congenital absence of human skin, was reported by Dr. Chul Song and several associates of the State University of New York.
2. Development of a miniaturized camera, with built-in flash-gun, which can be swallowed by a patient to allow diagnostic studies inside the stomach, was described by Dr. Jerome Weiss and two colleagues of New York's Polyclinic Medical School and Hospital. They said the completely self-contained camera and flash allows the recording of 16 simultaneous views encompassing the total area of the stomach's inner lining — thus allowing verification of suspected gastric abnormalities.

Dietary Products Hurting Sales in Dairy Industry

MILWAUKEE (AP)— Wisconsin dairy industry members were told Tuesday dietary products were hurting their sales because of ineffective advertising.

Robert Timm, a Milwaukee advertising executive, said that while the nation's population has risen 19 per cent in the last decade, milk and cream sales have claimed only 5 per cent and butter sales have dropped 6 per cent.

"Promotion might have overcome much of the marketing difficulty diets brought on the dairy industry," he told the opening session of the two-day convention of the Wisconsin Dairy Foods Association, Inc.

Timm suggested fresh advertising idea, energy for promotion, and new products could counter the trend.

He said dietary fashions had promoted a fear of calories that had hurt dairy sales. "Dairies ran away from the issue, and the other guy capitalized on it," Timm said.

Forced Dues for Civil Servants

One of the major measures resulting from the 1965 legislative deliberations at Madison, and now reposing on Gov. Warren P. Knowles' desk for approval or veto, has had too little public discussion in spite of its far-ranging significance in the operations of local government. The so-called "agency shop" bill sponsored by the statewide council of county and municipal employe unions has the objective of requiring all local government employes in localities where public service labor organizations exist to contribute financially to those unions, without regard to their desire to do so.

The bill would authorize unions to negotiate contracts with municipal employers, subject to an approving vote of a majority of the local government workers in the unit involved, requiring all of them to pay dues and initiation fees, even if they do not wish to become fully fledged union members or to participate in union activities.

In a state where the civil service idea has been powerful, and where civil service ordinances have been spreading rapidly, this will sound to many ears as strange. An accountant, or an assessor, or an engineer, or even a clerk or a stenographer, in a municipality with a civil service ordinance is required to show his competence and superiority in competition with all comers in an examination provided by ordinance.

That assures the employing public that the best available civil servants are being hired. Such ordinances also provide for discipline and dismissal under stated conditions, usually after a hearing, and for specified cause. That assures the public employe of tenure.

But the bill now pending in the governor's office introduces a wholly new concept to the governmental employe recruiting process, and to our minds, an extraneous, unfair and dangerous one. It would declare, in effect, that a person, however competent, however superior as demonstrated in competitive testing, however deserving and willing, would not be able to take a job in a public employment agency if the employer and employes by a majority vote had entered into a contract requiring such a person to pay dues and fees to the union, without making his own payments. This is compulsory unionism, thinly disguised. Such a law would say that a person who doesn't want to take part in union activities, or vote at union meetings, would not be required to do so, but he would be required to pay the membership fees, nevertheless.

Once before in this context we wondered aloud what these union lobbyists at Madison would say if anybody proposed that such employes be required to pay dues to a political party, or to a church, or a club, or whatever, as a condition of employment. Would they cry out that this was a dangerous invasion of personal liberty and individual choice? We wonder how such a measure slipped through the legislature with such ease, in the state senate, for example, without a single record vote to permit interested persons to check on the performance of their own representatives.

Poor Response to Medicare

After all the public debate about Medicare over the last few years, Social Security administrators are puzzled over the fact that to date only about 40 per cent of the elderly people eligible have signed up for government-subsidized health insurance. More than one-third of the 14.5 million Social Security beneficiaries invited to sign up in mass mailings during September and October failed to respond, and all they had to do was return a postpaid envelope with a card saying yes or no.

So now the Social Security Administration is conducting a nationwide survey in an attempt to find out why the program has not been better received.

Persons 65 or over are automatically covered under Medicare for hospital expense benefits. But in addition, for $3 a month, they can purchase from the government insurance covering doctor bills and other valuable benefits. And this is far cheaper than such insurance can be purchased from private insurers.

Is James Bond Really a Spy?

The mania for spy stories in this country apparently is something contagious or perhaps it is merely a reflection of attitudes in western nations due to the long years of the Cold War. Enthusiasm for stories of espionage and intrigue also has invaded the Iron Curtain but with quite a few differences.

Russian poet Yevushenko furiously attacked the most popular British spy-master, Ian Fleming, recently when he declared "the Soviet public doesn't know the meaning of boredom. They haven't seen any of the James Bond films."

The Russian may be right since there is little new in Bond stories except the involved means of dusting off the enemy, escaping his plots for mayhem and getting to bed with the girl. But one wonders a little at the anger in the East. An East German newspaper, for instance, claimed that the enthusiasm for Bond "is a plot hatched by Bonn to foster its cold war aims. . . . There is something of James Bond in the gun-toting men in the streets of Selma. And Bond flies in the bombers over North Viet Nam."

In contrast, the Soviet spies in Communist stories are men with a high sense of morals—or at least of what might even rather startlingly be called "bourgeois morality." Unlike Bond or even John

In advance of the results of the survey, it is suspected that the cost may be an important factor in the reluctance of older people to subscribe. There may also be confusion over possible duplication with existing private insurance.

It may also be that senior citizens believe there is no hurry about making the decision since the benefits from Medicare do not start until next July 1. But this is not true. They must elect to take the voluntary insurance by March 31, or wait another year and a half to sign up and then at an increase in premium of 10 per cent.

SSA officials are now considering a sales campaign to persuade more eligible persons to sign up. They are concerned about the actuarial soundness of the insurance plan. Government experts originally estimated that 85 to 95 per cent of those eligible would participate. If considerably less do, it may be the government insurance program will have an over-balance of poor health risks.

Le Carre's Spy Who Came In From the Cold, they do not drink on duty. They certainly do not fall in love or have casual love affairs. They don't even search for enemy spies in other countries since apparently that would somewhat destroy their image of being merely defensive. They are clean-cut lads who ride on street cars instead of high priced special Aston Martins. They are neither bored with routine paper work nor thrilled by the exhilaration of seeing the western war mongers frustrated. They are, of course, for peace. Unlike the western spies, they never seem to lose sight of that goal in excitement or despair.

In explaining Communist morality, Lenin wrote that "morality is that which serves to destroy the old exploiting society and to unite all the toilers around the proletariat, which is creating a new Communist society." But it appears that the Communist writers have had to adopt as an image a sort of Tom Swift character who is certainly in contrast to the sophisticated Bond and the discouraged Le Carre spies of the free world.

All of which raises a provocative question. Ideologically and literally speaking have we beaten them or is it the other way around? Whose side is James Bond really on?

We Don't Need Any New Program But Reevaluation of Ones We Have

BY HENRY J. TAYLOR

As our problems mount at home and in Viet Nam, a sober reappraisal seems to be taking place of President Johnson's thinking, and even his health. Will he really see the obvious and, if so, how soon?

Taylor

A top Texas White House aide, agreeing that the President is restless, says Johnson "is groping for more proposals of more programs."

His "Fabulous 89th Congress" passed 89 major bills in 42 weeks and voted to spend $119.5 billion of the people's money. Nothing could be more obvious than that our real need is to do better with the morass of programs we already have.

DRAIN ON TIME, ENERGY
The drains from these alone on Johnson's time and energy can be enormous and he can well end up in a storm of difficulties — like a lookout lashed to the Samson-post.

Many in the morass, like the War on Poverty, the Appalachian program, etc., are so bogged down by maladministration, bad judgment and growing evidences of graft and corruption that they could blow the people's confidence in Johnson's administration higher than a kite.

So could inflation. While the cost of living has another new high (and our gold reserve another new 27-year low), Johnson sends out word to play down the threat. But inflation is not a threat; it is a reality, a cold, stark reality, and if the President doesn't think so all he has to do is take a look at the government bond market.

While the public's attention is on the stock market, the government bond market has been sliding relentlessly down, and the declines have now put several Treasury yields to levels not seen since the 1920s.

It's obvious that Johnson's new programs, already enacted, will require enormous new borrowings and the fear of inflation profoundly affects bond prices.

Johnson tells the nation's banks that interest rates must stay down. Behind the scenes, he has hit them fully as hard with this idea as he has bludgeoned aluminum manufacturers with the stockpile. Yet nobody is demanding so much money against the tight

The banks can try to cooperate, and they are. But Johnson can never repeal the worldwide pressures of supply and demand, and the tide of higher rates is sure to engulf him sooner or later. Meanwhile, the taxpayers are already paying about $1 billion dollars a month on the money Washington has already borrowed.

The U. S. misalignment has grown sensational in the money markets of the world and intensely complicates our balance of payments problem. U. S. corporations today pay only 4½ to 5 per cent to sell long-term bonds. French enterprises pay about 8 per cent for 10-15 year maturities and German companies a full 9 per cent, about twice the American rate.

McNAMARA DEAD WRONG
It's equally obvious that about all Johnson can do is leave the Viet Nam war essentially to Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara and that McNamara has been dead wrong on this entire problem from his very beginning.

In the top ranks of the armed forces, he is a symbol for the disaster at the Bay of Pigs. And as for Viet Nam, how can the President conceivably fail to see that McNamara's successively wrong troop estimates are the key to the successive wrongness of his basic analysis?

Meanwhile, can the President maintain that our public has ever been told, or is being told now, the full truth about the blunder-ridden conduct of the Viet Nam war? It's obvious that the answer is a roaring "No."

Nothing could be clearer than that remedies are needed to these problems — and at once. And in these weeks of Texas convalescence our country can only pray that Johnson will face the things that are obvious and tackle them. We need more programs like we need a hole in the head. We need new signs of wisdom in the President, instead.

The cost of living goes up again, but it doesn't mean much. The stuff costs more, all right, but you can pay for it with those new cut-rate quarters.

The price index rose in spite of LBJ's efforts. He just couldn't quite fix it so we could live on nothing but aluminum and taxes.

Automobile prices are higher, but the statisticians say they really cost less. See, nothing is wasted—they've even found a use for the new math.

Recessed Legislative Sessions Result in Additional Spending

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — One of the by-products of the fragmentation of state legislative sessions in recent years has been the authorization of a greater variety and a higher level of state expenditures than would otherwise be likely.

Wyngaard

In the nature of the legislative process, lawmaking representatives respond to pressures, and the lengthening of session time provides the opportunity for the multiplication of such pressures. Thus the State Department of Administration recently reported, in a little noted dispatch, that the November recessed session added more than $7.5 million to the already record-breaking total of appropriations the Legislature approved earlier in the year in what it called the state "budget."

To some degree, additional spending would have been approved in the regular session if the Senate and Assembly had remained for an additional month last summer to dispose of their calendars finally. Thus it is probably unfair to say, as the state executive department release put it, that the "cost" of the fall session was $7.5 million. But the additional exposure of the legislators during the fall term brought on some additional spending. It is such a tendency that makes conservatives skeptical about the idea of changing the rules to provide for annual rather than biennial legislative terms.

PSYCHOLOGY

There is a psychology about legislative spending that is not always understood outside the system. It is difficult to gather support in the regular part of the legislative session, when the publicity focus is on the omnibus budget bill and especially in these times when the normal rate of expansion of the budget is so large as to make the public sensitive.

The regular state budget bill adopted in midyear reached the startling, to many taxpayers, total of nearly $830 million in authorized spending for the next two years. This was a handsome increase over the existing level of disbursements and one which ostensibly augured a huge deficit in revenues.

At that time it would have been a foolhardy pressure group, or agency, or legislator who would have proposed any substantial extra - budgetary spending. Such public sentiment as was available was hostile. The worry was about bridging the revenue gap with a reasonably acceptable tax package.

But the tax crisis was passed, in part because the revenue deficit was considerably smaller than had been anticipated in the projections made many months earlier. The memory of the record-breaking budget dimmed. Even before the regular summer session ended, the lawmakers had managed in separate bills to approve more than $7 million in spending above the budget. In October they felt free to spend some more, so that the total "budget" for the term thus far is the new record-breaking aggregate of about $844 million.

AGAIN IN MAY

But the legislative deliberations have not yet ended.

It would be a contradiction of all the rules of politics and human nature of these men in their deliberations next May fail to authorize another round of appropriations. There are plenty of remaining opportunities. Measures pending and ignored during the more difficult budget stalemate of last spring and summer remain alive. Their authors are hopefully alert in preparation for the reconvening. That session will come when the struggle for control of the state between the evenly matched Republican and Democratic Parties will be well underway. There is more return, as the average politician sees it, in spending than in saving, and most of these men will want to put their best foot forward against the November, 1966 balloting.

The frugal private citizen may wonder why some of this unexpected revenue in the state treasury could not be put aside to reduce the taxing troubles of the 1967 Legislature. It is a fair question, but it is academic. Politicians live one term at a time.

Strictly Personal

Astrology No Science; It Preceded Astronomy

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A reader in Pittsburgh wants to know why the word "astrology" is used to describe the cult, whereas the word "astronomy" is used when referring to the science.

What puzzles him is why we have such words as "biology," "zoology," "psychology," "sociology," and "geology," and yet describe the science of the heavens as "astronomy."

Harris

It is simply because "astrology" came first. The cult of foretelling the future by the stars preceded the scientific observation by thousands of years. By the time the astronomers arrived on the scene, the "scientific" name had already been appropriated by the cultists.

The same is true of our word "chemistry." Before there were any real chemists, there were "alchemists." This is a word imported from the Arabic, and means "transmuting base metals into gold." When scientific chemical research was begun, the word "chemistry" was devised as a shortened form of "alchemy."

Not many know that the word "philosopher" is also a late-comer. The earliest practitioners called themselves "sophists," that is, wise men, or men who had the ability to dispense wisdom to the multitude.

When Socrates came along, he denied that any human being truly possessed wisdom — and (following Pythagoras) called himself instead a "philosopher," that is, "one who loves wisdom." His term succeeded in taking hold, and today a "sophist" is a person who juggles words and ideas, while a "philosopher" is someone seriously engaged in the pursuit of truth.

Words such as "biology" and "zoology" and "geology" end in "logy" — which is the Greek root for "science" or "knowledge" — because their study was not preceded by primitive attempts to interpret their secrets. They began as sciences, and not as offshoots of some magical art. (Even the word "science," incidentally, is a late-comer to our language: it was known simply as natural philosophy throughout the Middle Ages.)

It is easy to look down upon the early astrologers and alchemists, but worth bearing in mind that they had a piece of truth by the tail. Recent studies of magnetic fields and sun-spots, as well as atomic fission, have given us greater respect for the insights of these cultists.

And Freud's masterpiece, "The Interpretation of Dreams" was surely prefigured by ancient dream-readers as far back as the Biblical tale of Joseph. They merely thought dreams foretold the future; Freud saw that they illumined the past — but it not also true that whatever has deeply influenced our past will also affect the course of our future?

Bridge Must Move For River Project

ATHENS, Tenn. (AP) — A bridge game is holding up progress in dredging the Hiwassee River.

The bridge spans the Hiwassee between McMinn and Bradley counties. The four-some — the two counties and the towns of Calhoun and Charleston — won't claim it.

Charlie Beasley, executive director of the McMinn County Committee of 100, says the bridge must be moved before the Tennessee Valley Authority can continue dredging the river.

BY TERRY GALVIN
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Mid-Eastern Conference co-favorites and co-defending champions Menasha and Kimberly collide Friday on the latter's court in the battle royal of a 7-game weekend slate.

The other top draw, also Friday, sends Neenah to Clintonville. The four teams were successful in M-E openers last Friday.

While the opening round victors contest among themselves, the four victims will be shooting for initial triumphs Friday also sends Kaukauna to Two Rivers and Shawano to New London.

Idle Saturday
With Kimberly and Two Rivers idle Saturday night, the rest of the circuit embarks on the third leg of the M-E title chase. Saturday's games find New London at Menasha, Clintonville at Shawano and Neenah at Kaukauna.

Coach Gene Mason's Papermakers and Menasha now under the direction of mentor Barry Ewald shared the 1964-5 titles with 11-3 records. Menasha, coached by Clem Massey, boasted a 2-1 edge over the Papermakers last season.

In the WIAA sub-regional test at Kimberly, the Bluejays rolled to a 70-58 verdict over KHS. The other Bluejay win came at home by a 60-52 count in the first meeting of the two teams last year Kimberly's triumph came before home fans on a 73-63 count.

Each club has two starters back from last season and each boasts an overall mark of 2-2 for the present campaign. MHS regulars back are Don Steffen and Tom Vanderhyden, while the Papermakers have John Reider and Gary Van Cuyk.

Other Starters
Other Menasha starters will probably be Wayne Domkowski, Dennis Jensen and Dennis Nelson. Mason will select his starting lineup from among Gary Gossens, Ken Fries, Bob Van Gompel and Tom Weyenberg. Van Cuyk, at 6-5, will be the tallest player on the court.

MOSCOW (AP) — Spartak of Moscow shut out the Green Bay Bobcats 2-0 Tuesday as the Wisconsin hockey team started a six-game tour of Europe.

The Bobcats won the U.S. Senior national championship last year while Spartak was second in the Soviet national tournament. Moscow writers said only the fine play of Bobcat goalie Norman Juxte prevented Spartak from winning by a greater margin.

Weekly Statistics Favor Baltimore in Sunday's Big Tilt

Loss of Unitas Alters Colts' Numerical Edge on Offense

NEW YORK (AP) — The weekly batch of statistical dope from the National Football League Tuesday gives Baltimore a decisive advantage on offense and Green Bay a slight edge on defense going into Sunday's big game at Baltimore.

However, the figures do not take into account the loss of Johnny Unitas and the doubtful status of Bart Starr.

The Colts' attack has produced 43 touchdowns, 14 by running and 29 by passing and their total offense yardage of 4,070 puts them in fourth place. Philadelphia tops the league in total offense with 4,617 yards.

Baltimore ranks 10th, just ahead of Green Bay 1,305 yards to 1,268 yards in running but the Baltimore passing game has produced 2,765 yards, good for third place, while Green Bay is 12th with only 1,668 yards.

Colts Fourth
The two teams are close on defense. The Packers are third, the Colts fourth in a department led by Detroit. Baltimore is fourth in rushing defense and fifth against the pass. Green Bay is 13th in rushing but first in pass defense.

Vice Lombardi's Packers have allowed the fewest total touchdowns, 16, running TDs, 9, and passing TDs, 7, of any club in the league and also have given up the fewest points, 173.

Cleveland also has yielded only nine running TDs. Baltimore's defense has allowed 27 TDs, 10 running and 17 passing and has given up 225 points.

In the pass rush and pass blocking department, the Packers have smeared the opposition.

Frederickson Named Giants' Rookie of Season

NEW YORK (AP) — Tucker Frederickson, the No. 1 draft choice of 1964, has been named the New York Giants' Rookie of the Year on a unanimous vote in a poll of sports writers and sportscasters.

Frederickson will receive the award — a silver tureen in the shape of a football — before the Dec. 19 game with Dallas at Yankee Stadium, the final game of the regular season.

On the Young, Relatively-Inexperienced arm of Gary Cuozzo rests the NFL Western Division hopes of the Baltimore Colts. Cuozzo, who will open at quarterback in place of the famed John Unitas Sunday, is shown warming up in practice Tuesday. The outcome of the Baltimore-Green Bay game is expected to determine the Western Division championship. (AP Wirephoto)

Cuozzo Cites Difference In Starting Game as Opposed to Late Entry

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — "I wouldn't say the Chicago Bears blitz bothered me," quarterback Gary Cuozzo, the man in the hot seat in Baltimore football, said in an interview Monday.

Cuozzo, 24, will replace Johnny Unitas on Sunday when the Colts and Green Bay Packers meet in the game of games for National Football League Western Conference fans.

Asked what could be worse than being an inexperienced second-string quarterback called on to replace a seemingly indispensable signal-caller in the year's biggest game, Cuozzo said:

"Being a rookie second-string quarterback called on for this job would be worse."

Third-Year Man
Cuozzo, a third-year man from the University of Virginia, started in but one other league game for the Colts. That was against Minnesota in November.

And Cuozzo responded by throwing five touchdown passes. "I don't feel anything about this week's game outside of the responsibility," said Cuozzo in a telephone interview with the Norfolk Ledger-Star.

"If this thing would have happened to John in my rookie year, I would have been a lot better off."

'Operation Black Ink' Set By Foxes' Officials for '66

Club Had Overall 1965 Loss Of $3,639 Stockholders Told

Post-Crescent Sports Editor

The Fox Cities Foxes will try to stage "Operation Black Ink" during the 1966 season.

Club stockholders learned Tuesday night that the Foxes finished in the red, financially, for at least the fourth time in the last five years. The 1965 operational loss of $3,639.13 comes on the heels of a 1964 deficit of $3,346.

This depletion of reserves, plus the annual depreciation of equipment and other fixed assets, has reduced the Fox Cities club's current net worth to only $456.29.

"Our financial picture is not very rosy," was Secretary S. M. Timmers' sum-up at the annual meeting held in the Outagamie County Court House.

The club will have to borrow money to commence its '66 operations. Foxes officials hope to reverse the trend the coming year. Two of the reasons for optimism are:

(1) The Jan. 18 banquet, which will bring nationally-known baseball figures to the area, and which will make money for the club if the encouraging early sale of tickets is any indication.

(2) The new affiliation with the Chicago White Sox, which could produce new interest as well as advantages.

Directors also point out that additional stock in the club can be bought by the public and that the purchase of such stock will help baseball's future in the Fox Cities.

One new director, Johnny Coy, was elected by stockholders. He succeeds Arthur Jones, who did not seek reelection. Those reelected for another term were Clarence Baetz, Dr. Lawrence Keller, Ralph McClone, Joe Schouten, Ray McClone and John Wissman.

Warriors Win Over ND State, Despite Errors

Marquette Commits 29 Turnovers in Foul-Laden Contest

By KEN HARTNETT

Associated Press Sports Writer MILWAUKEE (AP) — "Let 'em play basketball," shouted a heckler at referee Kevin Donlan during Tuesday night's whistle-choked, bumble-filled North Dakota State-Marquette basketball game.

"I surely wish they could," Donlan replied.

Marquette captured the comedy of errors 79-62 despite losing possession of the ball without taking a shot 30 times. North Dakota State was as bad. The Bison lost the ball 29 times on turnovers. Fifty-one personal fouls were called, 30 against the visitors.

"I have no answer to the turnovers," said Coach Al McGuire of the Warriors. "I thought that as the year went on we'd get less and less of them."

Wolf Scores 32
Only a 32-point performance by Bob Wolf saved the Warriors from disaster at the hands of the inept Bisons, who might have made a game of it had they been able to catch their own passes or do something with the ball besides dribble.

The Bison managed to hit on only 32 per cent of their shots while the Warriors were banging away at a 41.5 clip. The highest North Dakota scorer was Bob Maier with 13 points.

The visitors did succeed in cutting down a 17-point deficit to nine points at halftime, 38-29, after McGuire inserted his "scrambled egg" unit.

"The scramblers just didn't have it tonight," said McGuire. Neither did the starting five midway in the second half when again the Bisons pulled close.

Pair of MC Road Games

Vikes Meet Grinnell, Cornell

Lawrence University and the two Midwest Conference basketball foes it meets this weekend have something in common — each has lost the first two league games.

The Vikings of Coach Clyde Rusk will be at Grinnell College Friday night and then play at Cornell College in a Saturday afternoon contest.

Lawrence bumped into a pair of the toughest teams in the conference last weekend and came out on the short end of a pair of six-point decisions. The Vikings lost to Carleton College, 87-81 and to St. Olaf College, 85-79.

Strong Comeback
In the Carleton game, the Vikings staged a strong comeback in the second half to close the gap after the Carls had built up an early lead with some hot shooting. The St. Olaf game was just the opposite as the Vikings and Oles staged a close battle all the way with Lawrence taking a lead late in the game only to see the Oles rally and hold the Vikings scoreless through the last 2½ minutes.

Coach Rusk pointed out that the lack of overall experience on the Lawrence squad showed through last weekend.

"We were up against teams which have the majority of last year's starters back," the Lawrence mentor explained, "and our lack of rebounding strength also was apparent."

Scoring Drought
Rusk said he was pleased with the way the team bounced back in the Carleton game, but was disappointed at not racking up a win against St. Olaf. The scoring drought in the late minutes upset the squad and caused some turnovers in key situations, the Lawrence coach said.

Brown Has Virtually Clinched Rushing Title

Bukich Retains Lead In Passing; Parks Heads Receivers

NEW YORK (AP) — Jim Brown of Cleveland has virtually clinched the rushing championship and scoring crown in the National Football League but there is a lively battle for the pass catching title between Dave Parks of San Francisco and Pete Retzlaff of Philadelphia.

Brown has gained 1,450 yards in 12 games and his 20 touchdowns, tying Lenny Moore's record of last year, give him the scoring lead with 120 points.

The closest competitor in the rushing department is Timmy Brown of Philadelphia with 833 yards, or 617 yards behind Jim. Fred Cox of the Minnesota Vikings is next to Brown in scoring with 98 points on 20 field goals and 38 conversions. It is possible for him to catch the Cleveland fullback, but not likely.

Parks has caught 62 passes for 1,066 yards and Retzlaff, veteran tight end of the Eagles, has nabbed 60 for 1,119 yards.

Tommy McDonald of Los Angeles is third with 53 receptions. Although Bob Hayes, the Dallas rookie, isn't among the top 10 receivers, he has caught 40 for 806 yards and is averaging 20.2 yards per catch. He may become the first rookie receiver to gain 1,000 yards catching passes since Mike Ditka's 1,076 for Chicago in 1961.

Rudy Bukich of Chicago remains the leading passer in standings based on several different categories. Bobby Boyd of Baltimore has the most interceptions, seven. Gary Collins of Cleveland leads the punters with a 46.9-yard average. Leroy Kelly of Cleveland is the top punt return man with an average of 16.2 yards, and Tom Watkins of Detroit is first in kickoff returns with a 34.4-yard average.

NEW YORK (AP)—Dick McGuire is one up on a couple of old teammates and Red Auerbach is one down to another referee. But Auerbach's Boston Celtics still are 8½ up on McGuire's New York Knickerbockers.

The Knicks edged Los Angeles 131-127 Tuesday night for McGuire's second coaching victory in three starts after the Celtics beat St. Louis 112-96 but lost Auerbach in the opener of a stormy National Basketball Association doubleheader.

McGuire has beaten two former Knick teammates — St. Louis player-coach Richie Guerin and Los Angeles pilot Fred Schaus — since taking over the New York reins nine days ago. Auerbach, meanwhile, has been tossed out of a game for the second time this season.

The Celtics, however, remain on top in the Eastern Division race, 16 percentage points in front of second-place Cincinnati and 8½ games ahead of the last-place Knicks.

They overpowered the Hawks despite the absence of big Bill Russell, scoring ace Sam Jones and Auerbach, who was ejected from the game in the third period after drawing his second technical foul of the evening in a tragicomic rhabarb.

The argument started over a team technical foul called against the Celtics for making an illegal substitution. Mike Farmer, who handles the St.

Draft Board Classes Jets' Namath as 4-F

BEAVER FALLS, Pa. (AP) — Heralded rookie quarterback Joe Namath of the New York Jets, hampered by a knee injury during his college football career, has been classified 4-F by his local draft board.

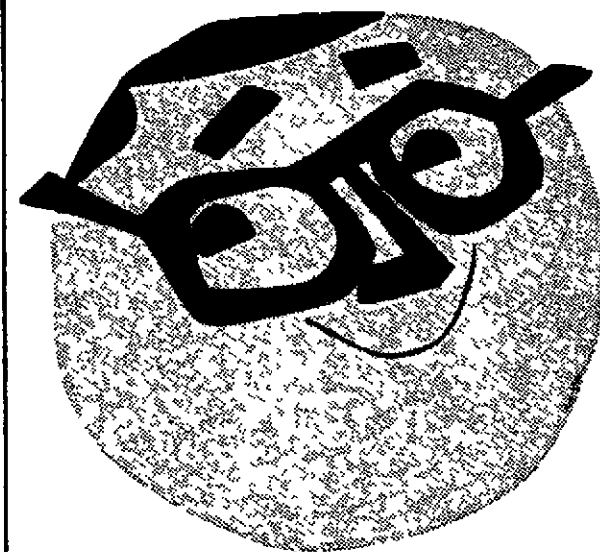

A spokesman for Draft Board 24, in disclosing the classification Monday, declined to comment further.

Namath, who played high school football in this Beaver County town, reportedly received a $400,000 bonus to sign with the American Football League team.

A 4-F designation means Namath is unqualified for military service because of physical disability.

Louis bench while Guerin is playing, pointed out the infraction to the officials and when Auerbach demanded equal time for rebuttal, Drucker ignored and then banished him.

Jim Grabowski Talks Contract With Packers

Illinois Fullback Hasn't Decided Between Offers Yet

GREEN BAY (AP) — All-America fullback Jim Grabowski visited Green Bay Tuesday but his lawyer said no contract was signed with the Packers.

Grabowski, a first round choice in both the National and American football league drafts, was rumored to have reached terms with the NFL's Packers, but attorney Arthur Morse of Chicago called the reports "absolutely untrue."

Morse said he and Grabowski arrived here so late Tuesday they were able to talk to Packers officials for only a few minutes at the airport before the team flew east to prepare for Sunday's crucial game with the Baltimore Colts.

The Packers coach and general manager, Vince Lombardi, was staying with the team at a motel near Washington, D.C., but could not be reached for comment late Tuesday night.

Grabowski was also drafted as the No. 1 pick of the AFL's new entry, the Miami Dolphins.

this time to within six points of the lead, 51-45. But Wolf, Tom Flynn, who scored 23 points before fouling out, and Blanton Simmons, who scored 11 points in his first start, went to work and built the lead back up to a safe 10 points within three minutes.

Warmup for Davidson

The game was a warmup for Marquette's clash against Davidson, a national power, Thursday night in Charlotte, N.C. A tough Louisville team will host the Warriors Saturday.

"I was not really satisfied with anything," said McGuire, "except maybe Bob Wolf's shooting. I believe the talent is here. It's just got to be jelled. We just can't seem to find a real strong leader."

Wolf scored on 13 of 18 field goal attempts and six of seven free throws as the Warriors won their second game in three starts.

"If we can come back with a split on the trip, I won't look back," said McGuire.

Cuzzo's experience is limited.

"There are two teams which I've never faced either in exhibitions or league games. One is Los Angeles and the other is... you guessed it... Green Bay," said Cuzzo.

Earlier in the year, Cuzzo was called upon to replace Unitas after John's back stiffness in Chicago. That time and again last week, Cuzzo was greeted by a severe Bear blitz upon his arrival.

After a pass play went awry last weekend, Cuzzo found himself beaten to the turf in Baltimore's Memorial Stadium with 6-8, 255-pound Doug Atkins hovering over him.

Said Cuzzo: "Atkins looked down on me and said, 'Kid, things are going to get a lot worse.'"

"There is all the difference in the world in starting a game as I did in Minnesota and coming in cold as I've done twice against the Bears," Cuzzo said.

and Frank Briske, recording secretary. New officers are Dr. Kelle, vice president; and Baetz, treasurer.

Six associate directors were named. They are Howard Rehfeldt, George Banta, III, Ted Gilliland, Richard Mahony, Jr., Hanford Baldoock and Dick Adams.

Rahn reported that the Foxes' total attendance for 1965 was 43,412—or an average of 789 for each of 55 home dates. The season's attendance represented a decrease of 4,956 from the '64 season.

Rahn indicated that the total receipts for 1965 were $45,167.18—a decrease of $10,417.84 from the previous season. The total '65 expenses were $49,313.31—thereby producing a net loss of $3,639.13.

The city of Appleton waived the $2,000 Goodland Field rental because of the Foxes' poor financial season, Rahn reported. The Foxes' balance sheet, as of Oct. 31, 1965, showed only $4,712.23 in total assets, according to Timmers. The principal items were $4,260.52 cash in the bank and $1,751.46 in fixed assets. On the liabilities side of the ledger are $4,255.94 in accounts payable—leaving a net worth of $566.29.

Ed Holtz, business manager, announced that '66 tickets are now available for Christmas giving. He said the tickets, either for the entire season or in books of 10, will be sold at the '65 prices.

Holtz reported that no significant developments came out of the annual minor league meeting in Florida. He said that the Midwest League has decided to continue with the usual three trips a season to each city but that every effort would be made to keep total mileage to a minimum. The ML will meet Jan. 9, according to Holtz.

Gossens is 6-3. Steffin and Domkowski are 6-2, while Jensen is 6-3.

Clintonville, winner of three games in a 5-day span last week, will be led by Pete Korb, the lone returning starter from last season's third place club.

Other Trucker starters will be Terry Nelson, Mike Pasch, Dale Steinko and Chuck Goetsch and Jerron Dieck or Gary Miller.

Steinko is the tallest of Coach Carl Bruggink's starters at a mere 6-1, while Jankowski is 6-2 and Koepke is 6-1 for the Rocket height.

Only four players managed to equal or surpass the 20-point mark in opening games. The scorers included Menasha's Vanderhyden (25), Two Rivers' E. J. Streu (21) and Kaukauna's Pat Kavanaugh (20) and Shawano's Ron Jesse (20).

TV Shows With Rating May Build New Career

'Rawhide' to Get Axe After Six Robust Years; Lion Character Its Replacement

BY CYNTHIA LOWRY
NEW YORK (AP) — CBS programming executives, like impatient gardeners, are weeding out very early in the season any shows with symptoms of that terrible TV disease, ratings lag. "Rawhide," after six healthy years, will be ripped from the network's Wednesday night schedule as soon as possible — after the first of the year. It will be replaced by a series called "Clarence, the Cross-Eyed Lion," itself an unsuccessful candidate for a spot in the season's new schedule.

The new series, expanded in the current fashion from a minor old feature film, obviously is counted as one of those so-called "family shows" which means a program that adults believe will not harm their children and which they will patiently sit through themselves.

Animal Characters
By the time this television season has ended, it will have shaped up as one more beneficial to lovable animal actors than to humans. There is, of course, "Mr. Ed," the talking horse, and "Flipper," the dolphin who almost talks and "Lassie" who does everything but talk, and now Clarence. "Honey West's" closest companion is an ocelot named Bruce — although in real life, Bruce is a girl ocelot named Honey but that would have been much too confusing to the audience. There is also Spot, "The Munsters'" flame-throwing pet, and "My Three Sons," shaggy dog, Tramp and "Please Don't Eat the Daisies," Hungarian sheepdog called "Ladadog" by the witty script writers but whose real name is Lord Nelson.

CBS has really decided to replace its first cancellation of the season, "Slattery's People" with an Art Linkletter-hosted variety show to start on Dec. 3. This addition will bring to 15 the number of network variety shows available to most TV audiences each week.

Presumably Linkletter's free adaptation of his summer replacement hour, "Hollywood Talent Scouts," will be long on inexpensive new talent and success-story interviews with established stars who do not perform but who plug their current activities.

On another front, the identity of Dorothy Malone's "Peyton Place" substitute will be Lola Albright, who will step into the role of Constance Carson for five or six weeks while Miss Malone is recuperating from a serious lung operation.

Miss Albright's television personality seems a bit youthful for the storm-tossed Mrs. Carson. Until a few seasons back she was playing the sexy blonde innamorata of "Peter Gunn."

General Rise In Interest Affects Budget

Business, Families May Have to Curtail Expenditure Plans

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Credit is a way of life with many American families and most businesses. A general rise in interest rates thus can affect the family budget and business operating costs.

But by how much? And how will they react? Those are the questions now that the Federal Reserve Board has raised the basic interest rate. It now charges banks 4 1/2 per cent to borrow from it instead of the 4 per cent as of last week. This led many commercial banks to raise their own prime, or basic, rate for loans to business from the previous 4 1/2 per cent to 5 per cent.

The question is whether this will spiral into higher borrowing costs for consumers and for most businesses. And if it does, will this dim the ardor of many families for new gadgets bought on time, cause many firms to trim borrowing plans — or to raise prices to offset rising operating costs.

One View
Those who think the effects of the Fed's action may be slight argue this way:

— Few business loans of late have been made at the old prime rate of 4 1/2 per cent. Most firms have been paying 5 per cent or more to get funds. The big demand for credit may push the borrowing costs for the least favorable risks a bit higher. But few customers are likely to be driven away.

— Interest is tax deductible. That is, it is part of operating costs to be charged off before paying the corporate income tax. This is still near 50 per cent, so businessmen figure that, in effect, the Treasury will be paying about half of any increase in borrowing costs.

— Consumers pay little attention to interest rates, according to lenders. What they want to know is the amount of the monthly payment and how it fits their paycheck. A rise of a few cents due to higher interest costs may mean little in today's affluent society.

But many critics of the Federal Reserve's tighter money policy fear the worst. And here are some of the dire possibilities they foresee:

— Costlier borrowing and tighter credit may lead corporations to take a second look at the cost of expansion plans, and at the probable profits to be made from taking on more plant and equipment. If business capital spending drops, the whole economy will suffer.

— Dearer money will make it more expensive for businessmen to carry inventories, thus either trimming their buying from producers, or tempting them to raise prices to their customers — losing a few, if they do.

— School Financing
— Bond offerings to finance state and local building of schools, roads, waterworks and the like will be harder to float, and costlier to the taxpayers who ultimately foot the interest charges.

— The U.S. Treasury must borrow more money to finance a growing deficit — and already its annual interest cost has risen to the $12-billion level.

— Building and sale of new homes has been in the doldrums of late. If mortgage costs rise, it could be still harder to find buyers.

And then there's yet another question — perhaps the most iffy of them all. Can the millions who own and buy U.S. Savings Bonds hope for a better return? They get 3 1/2 per cent now, lower than almost any other form of investment. Under the law the Treasury raise this to 4 1/2 per cent. To go any higher would take congressional action.

Sea Trade Route Directly to Africa To be Established

MILWAUKEE (AP)—A direct trade link from Milwaukee to ports on the south and east coasts of Africa will be established next spring for the first time. Milwaukee Port Director Harry C. Brockel announced Tuesday.

The sea lanes will be established by the Nippon, Yusen, Kaisha (NYK) line of Japan. Regular monthly trade service would begin with the opening of the 1966 St. Lawrence Seaway season.

Previously, Brockel said heavy equipment and farm machinery shipped to Africa from Milwaukee was transported by way of European ports.

Frank Schneider, La Crosse, to Visit Little Chute Group

LITTLE CHUTE — Frank R. Schneider, LaCrosse, state American Legion commander, will make his annual visit to the Little Chute post at 8 p.m. Monday at the village hall.

He will confer with officers and the executive committee at operating costs.

Market Inches Higher in Busy Day on Board

Rebound Continues From Sharp Selloff After Interest Boost

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market inched higher today in active trading. Lower-priced issues, aerospace defense stocks and airlines led the advance.

The economic news was good but mild as the market continued to rebound from its sharp selloff early Monday following the Federal Reserve's boost in the prime interest rate.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at noon was up 1.06 to 952.39. The market's opening was met by brisk buying but the advance cooled as the day wore on.

The Associated Press 60-stock average at noon was up .7 to 351.8 with industrials up 1.1, rails up .4 and utilities up .1.

United Airlines advanced about 3 to lead airlines to higher ground. Eastern was up a point.

Among aerospace defense stocks, United Aircraft was up a point or so, along with Boeing and Douglas.

Among lower-priced stocks, Sperry Rand continued active and fractionally higher.

IBM advanced 4 points. MGM was up a point or so. General Motors fell more than a point and Du Pont was off about 2.

Jones & Laughlin was apoint higher. Other steels were up fractions.

Utilities, electronics and metals were mixed amid narrow changes. Rails were fractionally higher.

International Telephone was off a fraction and American Broadcasting fell about 4.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange moved higher in heavy trading.

U.S. government and corporate bond prices were mostly unchanged.

AMC Will Suspend Work For 3 Weeks

KENOSHA (AP) — American Motors Corp., announced today a 13-day suspension of production at its automobile plants in Kenosha and Milwaukee and a reduction of its work force by 2,400 employees—principally in Kenosha.

William V. Luneburg, vice president for automotive manufacturing, said the purpose of the suspension of production was to "realign field stocks to the current sales pace."

But he gave no explanation for the cutback in the total Wisconsin employment to approximately 19,000 through the layoff of 2,400.

The assembly plants in Kenosha and the body division in Milwaukee will close for three working days between Christmas and New Years, AMC said, and for the first 10 working days in January. Production will be resumed Jan. 17.

New School In Ghetto Wrong, Farmer Explains

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The national director of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) said Tuesday that new schools in cities with large Negro populations should be located in areas where "maximum integration can be achieved."

James Farmer spoke to a predominantly white audience at the Congregation Sinai temple.

Referring to the MacDowell school under construction in Milwaukee where a civil rights demonstration brought several arrests Monday, Farmer said:

"New schools should not be built in the heart of the ghettos."

He said new schools that will have large Negro enrollments should be located on the fringes or outside of "ghetto" areas.

Farmer said he came to Milwaukee for two civil rights speeches, meetings with students and faculty at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee and several street rallies today.

Conservation Awards Told

Presentations Scheduled at Madison Dinner

MADISON (AP) — Names of more recipients of Wisconsin Conservation Achievement Awards in 1965 were announced today. Presentations will be made at a banquet in Madison Dec. 14.

The nominating committee, in listing more winners, said the identity of the all-around outstanding conservationist will not be made public until the banquet.

Latest announced award winners, by categories, include:

Wildlife—Phil Sander of Kenosha, longtime leader in his county's conservation club; soil—Byron Berg of Blanchardville, beef farmer and soil conservation leader; Water—Theodore F. Wisniewski, director of the state water pollution committee; forestry—Edmund Erickson of La Crosse, sawmill operator and pioneer in woodlot cut timber cutting; youth—Alpha Kappa Lambda, conservation fraternity at Stevens Point State University; conservation education—Russell Way, Green Bay school superintendent; legislation—Sen. Clifford Krueger, R-Merrill.

The committee earlier selected Ben Lewis, Wausau Record-Herald city editor and outdoor writer, and the Dane County Conservation League for citations in the communications and organization categories.

Trustees Told to Work Out Use Plan for Vacant County Farm

OSHKOSH — Trustees of Winnebago County Institutions were given support of the institutions committee Tuesday afternoon to work out the best use of the county farm land as they see fit on a short-term arrangement.

The two groups met jointly at the county hospital. The trustees said they had received requests for renting the land for periods covering several years.

The trustees also were authorized to handle the rental of the homes at the county institutions which might become vacant as the result of phasing out the county farm and not naming a new assistant superintendent.

Supt. Donald Zboray reported Sunny View Sanatorium has offered the use of its laboratory facilities and technician to the county institution. He said he that board.

Room is provided in the New Pleasant Acres Home for such uses but these rooms can be used for other purposes until such use of those rooms is needed.

The institutions committee and trustees reviewed a letter on community mental health centers and possible federal aid which had been referred to it by the county board. The two groups agreed this letter probably is more in the province of the county guidance center board and should be referred to that board.

Your Money's Worth

Christmas Peak Time To Drop Out of School

BY SYLVIA PORTER

We are now into a peak high school dropout season — the last weeks before Christmas. By the end of this school year, an estimated 750,000 boys and girls will have dropped out of high schools across the nation, thereby condemning themselves to the lowest rungs of the economic ladder.

This is despite unprecedented efforts to lure dropouts back to school, to provide new vocational training opportunities, etc. Just how, then, is our anti-dropout drive going?

Actually, the U.S. has made impressive gains in recent years. This past June a record 71 per cent of American youngsters were making it through high school — compared to only 51 per cent in 1950. A record 38 per cent of the college-age group went on to college — against only 21 per cent in 1950.

Today high school dropouts make up less than half of our entire work force; in 1940 it was two-thirds. A peak 64 per cent in the 16-24 age group are high school graduates or still in school; the proportion was only 57 per cent as recently as 1959.

Unemployment Rate
Despite our skyrocketing number of teen-agers, "The number of dropouts this year is not only finally leveling off but actually may decline," says Daniel Schreiber, assistant superintendent of the New York City Board of Education and an authority on the national high school dropout problem. "There's also every prospect that our scandalous teen-age unemployment rate will fall in the months ahead because greater numbers are staying in school longer."

The diversity of forces behind this encouraging new trend suggests the breadth of the anti-dropout drive. Specifically:

Many U.S. high schools have re-tailored their curricula to offer more up-to-date job-oriented vocational training to the non-college bound. Many schools have set up intensive summer courses to help "under achievers" across the finish line. Most high schools now offer work-study plans enabling financially disadvantaged youngsters to work part time in order to earn enough money to stay in school. Federal grants to the states since 1958 under the National Defense Education Act have helped boost the total of full-time high school counselors from 12,000 to 31,000—and these counselors have been of key importance in influencing students to stay in school.

Scholarship Incentive
Still another major incentive is the scholarship-laden Higher Education Act of 1965 which implies this powerful promise: "A high school senior can apply to any college or university and not be turned away because his family is poor."

And, of course, a basic force has been the realization by mounting numbers of would-be dropouts that a high school diploma could be their only passport to decent jobs, rising pay and employment security in the years ahead.

Nevertheless, good as the progress is, it's not good enough. As Schreiber puts it, "Too many of our high schools are still not changing their courses to meet the needs and interests of students who are not college bound. There are still drastic shortages of counselors. For many, financial barriers to staying in school are still enormous."

Anti-Dropout Efforts
We are still concentrating our anti-dropout efforts on those who have already dropped out—and neglecting the challenge of the would-be dropout. We are still concentrating counseling and special training on boys—although jobless rates for girls are far higher than for boys.

Turn that 71 per cent graduation record upside down and you see that nearly 30 per cent of our youngsters don't make it through high school—which translates into more than 5 million school dropouts in the 16-24 age range today.

While these conditions exist, the school dropout will remain an explosive economic-social threat to our society.

Woman to Take Case to Court At Kaukauna

Mrs. James Nagel Cites Conflict of School, Health Jobs

KAUKAUNA — Mrs. James Nagel, 710 Sullivan Ave., told the city council Tuesday night she will take her complaint to court regarding the incompatibility of the positions of city health officer and school board member.

She accused the council of disobeying the law by permitting Dr. George A. Behnke to continue in both posts after the League of Municipalities and state attorney general ruled the positions are incompatible.

Mrs. Nagel said the city attorney advised her to forget her campaign against the man holding both offices, indicating the council would not become involved in a personal vendetta. She said if it was too difficult to find a replacement for health officer, the city could find a replacement on the school board.

Tested in Court

Aldermen explained rulings by the League of Municipalities and attorney general were merely rulings and the incompatibility of the offices had never been tested in court, which would be the only way to ascertain whether the positions were really incompatible.

Mrs. Nagel said she would also challenge two other school board members who also serve in other capacities for the city. She was referring to a lieutenant on the police force and a member of the police and fire commission who also are school commissioners.

When she asked when the term of the health officer expired, Mrs. Nagel was told the health officer was appointed by the board of health and no termination date was set. She questioned the advisability of making an indefinite appointment and indicated the council had not heard the last of the complaint.

Mrs. Nagel has been attempting, since early this year, to have the city health officer resign from one of his two posts.

Village Board Allows Township Hydrant Usage

KIMBERLY — The village board Monday night entered into agreement with the Town of Buchanan to permit the township use of village water hydrants in event of a major fire.

The agreement, made annually, permits the township a supply of water from the village hydrants through a direct hose hook-up or by using the hydrants to fill water tanks which are driven to the fire location.

A letter was received from Kimberly-Clark Corp. praising the village firemen for their efforts in assisting mill fire crews in controlling a fire on No. 3 paper machine in November.

Mrs. Katherine Lochschmidt, village clerk, reported, the final state income tax check amounting to $37,647 was received, bringing the total for the year

Kaukauna Advised to Engage Planning Firm

Franchett Tells Council Valley Unit Would Coordinate Master Plan; Outlines Procedure

KAUKAUNA — The city council Tuesday night was advised by the Fox Valley Regional Planning Commission to hire an outside planning consultant firm to prepare a master comprehensive plan.

Eugene Franchett, regional director of the commission, indicated, the commission would serve as coordinator and work with the outside firm in preparing the master plan. He suggested the council and planning commission determine the scope of the planning program, hire a reputable planning consultant firm, pass a resolution approving a master plan and have the mayor submit the necessary information for obtaining federal aid.

Approve First Resolution

The council then passed a resolution requesting the State Department of Resource Development to apply to the Federal Housing and Home Finance Agency for urban planning assistance for the city. The city agreed to provide one-third the cost of the planning work and provide funds for a continuing planning program.

Plans call for future meetings with Franchett, the council and city planning commission to establish the scope of the program and take steps towards hiring a planning consultant firm.

Expressway System

Contest Likely For Waupaca 1st Ward Post

Robert Whitman Takes Out Papers; Incumbent Files

WAUPACA — A race to represent Waupaca's First Ward on the county board was indicated Tuesday.

Alfred E. Johnson, incumbent, filed his nomination papers and Robert Whitman, 127 N. Harrison St., took out nomination papers from County Clerk Robert Backer. Whitman is a service station operator in Waupaca.

Leonard B. Peterson, Waupaca Third Ward incumbent, also filed his nomination papers. As a result of county reapportionment, the second and third wards in Waupaca have been combined into one district. Peterson will have Waldemar Johnson, third Third Ward incumbent, as his opponent in the race for the post.

Other Incumbents

Others who have taken out nomination papers recently were:

Earl Christenson, Town of Helvetia incumbent. Helvetia has been combined with the Town of Harrison along with the village and town of Iola to form a two-supervisor district. J. F. Samsell, Town of Harrison incumbent also has taken out papers.

Incumbent from the Town of Larrabee, Harold Steenbock has taken out papers as has Elmer Paul who will be seeking reelection in New London's First Ward.

Construction of the new $900,000 central service building at Grand Army Home for Veterans at King has been in progress since July and the new structure is rapidly taking shape. It is the first step of a massive building program planned for the home and will make possible consolidation service departments such as laundry and food preparation, now in separate buildings. ## Hopes for Help From Hometown

Marine Will Clothe Vietnamese

The man who took the picture, Appleton Marine L. Cpl. Steve Eggert, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Eggert, 1518 W. Spencer St., is organizing from his billet in Viet Nam a city-wide clothing collection to dress the children and others like them for the coming holiday.

Eggert has asked his brother Phillip, 17, at the Appleton High School, and Jeffery, 15, and sister, Jenny, 13, both at Wilson Junior High School, to ask their teachers "for a few minutes to talk to the class." He has asked them to read his letter, describing the conditions of the children in Viet Nam, "borrow some wagons" and collect usable clothing to send to him for distribution.

Paint Poster

The Eggert's older sister, Pat, has agreed to follow Steve's directions and paint a colorful poster publicizing the clothing drive which the children can display when giving their talks before the students. The poster would show the American and South Vietnamese flags and have the slogan "Operation-Viet Nam" across the top.

The Marine, who has been in the embattled Southeast Asian country since July, has written in other letters to his family that he is appalled by the conditions under which the people live.

"Look in your American history books where it tells about the Indians, about in the early 1900s. These people here still live that way and in many cases, even worse."

Eggert and other American soldiers have been giving the Vietnamese "tin and wood to build half-way decent houses to live in, soap to wash with (these houses don't have running water, not even a well and no electricity) and we've been giving them health and medical aid."

Need Clothes

"These people are still behind and need clothes, mostly children's clothes, toys, shoes, and common kitchen utensils that don't require electricity."

The soldier said that efforts on the part of American people to provide them with clothing "would be appreciated as much as they appreciate us here fighting to win them their freedom from communism."

The Marine said he will write letters to Appleton officials, American Legion groups and the Chamber of Commerce to get backing for the youth's clothing march and to raise funds to pay for the clothing shipments.

"When everything gets here," the Marine writes, "I'll take pictures and tell the people what you've done."

Friends Collect Clothes

Mrs. Eggert said her son

"is the kind of guy who always helped people fix flat tires." She said in his behalf she has talked to some friends who have already collected clothing for shipment.

Mrs. Eggert said that some of the clothing will be separated and sold for rags and scraps to raise money to pay postage on the better clothing. She hoped, she said, to have several shipments ready before the Christmas holidays.

"People there are sending Christmas cards, letters, candy and blood to us," her son writes, Mrs. Eggert said, "but we don't need that stuff."

"If the U.S. wants to show their support to the Viet Nam war, and also help win the war, they can do what I am asking you guys to do."

"Well," the fighting man concludes in his final letter, "How about it Phil, Jeff and Jenny?"

An Appleton Marine Appalled at the way Vietnamese children are dressed, has asked help from his Appleton brothers and sisters in collecting warm clothing for the holidays. C/Cpl. Steve Eggert is directing the collection from his billet in Viet Nam.

Laird Says Solons Must Use Powers

Predicts End of Governmental System if Legislature Fails to Stir

NEW LONDON — Unless the legislative branch of the government begins to exercise its constitutional powers, the American governmental structure is doomed, predicted 7th District Rep. Melvin R. Laird (R-Marshfield) at a joint meeting of the Rotary and Lions Clubs here Tuesday.

He referred to Congress as a rubber stamp.

The house majority leader said the second session of the 89th Congress should go over and correct some of the legislative flaws passed in the first session, Laird said.

World War I veterans lost benefits because of the increase in Social Security, he said. This was just one example of poor legislation passed by Congress without investigation.

Dissolve Legislature

"Unless Congress is willing to exercise its responsibility, we might as well dissolve the Legislature and give up the system of checks and balances," Laird said.

Laird said as the senior minority party member on the defense appropriation committee, his committee had never had a partisan vote on defense finances.

Laird said he did not realize "such a fuss would occur" when he said Congress had the constitutional right and responsibility to raise armies and declare war. "I have been called a War Hawk because I believe in the constitution and the rights of Congress," Laird said.

"Close to Major War"

The president should seek congressional action before raising the number of men fighting in Viet Nam or raising the amount of aid to that country, Laird said.

Laird said the president had already escalated our commitment to the point where "we are drifting dangerously close to a major ground war in Viet Nam."

Laird said it is time President Johnson gave Congress and the American people the facts of the war situation.

Blockade Port

His suggestion was a blockade of the port Hai Phong. The effect on such a quarantine would in three to six months be far greater than the escalation of the ground war, Laird said. He cited the figures of 90 per cent of all weapons and supplies for communist troops as coming through the port, while only 10 per cent came by way of the railroad linking North Viet Nam with China.

The goal of the U. S. is to bring about unconditional negotiations and talks, Laird said. Congress supports the president fully in our commitment, he added.

The will of the American people is being tested by the Communist organization, he said. The Communists think it will break. I don't, if the people have the information on the war and insist Congress make the information available, Laird added.

Waupaca Sets $36 Tax Rate for 1966

Mobile Home Court Is Approved

WAUPACA — The city council in an hour-long session Tuesday, approved the 1966 budget which carries a $36 per $1,000 assessed valuation tax rate, okayed the establishment of the city's first mobile home court and approved a subdivision plat on the south shore of the Crystal River.

The only taxpayers present at the public hearing on the city budget were the aldermen, mayor and city clerk.

The budget which totals $404,015 is $21,279 more than last year's budget of $382,736. A readjustment of the city's equalized valuation by the state department of assessments along with an actual increase in valuation accommodated the tax rate cut from the $37 of last year to the $36 this year.

The tax levy for city purposes is $144,584. General expenditures for the year have been estimated at $372,249 and outlay at $23,185 for a grand total of $395,434. This coupled with a contingent appropriation of $8,581 brings the total budget to $404,015. Revenues are expected to total $259,413.

A breakdown of the expenditures in categories is as follows: General government, $54,980, from $50,800; protection of property, $61,880, up from $73,031; health and sanitation, $19,500, up from $19,400; highways and streets, $59,050, up from $54,220; education and recreation, $50,105, down from $50,000.

He hopes it will help reduce the amount of mis-sent and undeliverable mail. (Laib Photo)

Stockbridge OK's $50,060 Budget

Spending Plan for 1966 Calls For Tax Rate of $22; Up $1

STOCKBRIDGE — $50,060 will be a tax rate of $22 per $1,000 of assessed valuation. This is a $1 increase.

The budget includes:

— $14,300 for local village needs, $402 less than was budgeted a year ago but $5,596 less than was actually spent.

Expenditures for the year, 10 months actual and two months estimated, amounted to $19,896 because of a $6,000 road building bill carried over from the previous year.

— $28,635 as the village's share of the school district budget, an increase of $3,577.

— $7,124 as its contribution to the county and state taxes, a decrease of $336.

When applied against the village's $1,669,395 assessed valuation, the new tax rate will produce a levy of $36,726. Revenues anticipated from sources other than direct taxes are expected to produce $12,830, up $64 from this year.

This year's $21 rate, applied to a $1,640,672 tax base produced taxes totaling $34,454, $2,272 less than next year.

Village Expenses A breakdown of village expenses shows village hall, $950; officials, $1,300; street lights, $1,960; park, $250; election, $150; board of review, $90; fire department, $600; roads, $6,000; miscellaneous, $1,000, and building fund, $2,000.

Outside revenues include roads, $6,000; income tax, $4,000; liquor tax, $750; liquor licenses, permits, and fees, $600; trailer permits, $90; utility tax, $900, and interest, $490.

School taxes will take $17.15 of each $22 collected in 1966; county and state purposes, $4.27, and village needs, about 60 cents. A breakdown of this year's rate shows $12.27 of every $21 collected going for schools; $4.55 for county and state needs, and $1.18 for village needs.

WAUPACA — Lloyd F. Durrant, 51, 204 S. Main St., Waupaca, forfeited a $33 bond to Municipal Justice George Whalen Tuesday when he failed to appear in court to answer to a charge of disorderly conduct.

Durrant was arrested Sunday by city police after he created a disturbance at his home.

Women Can Tend Bar in New London

NEW LONDON — With the only woman ever to sit on the city council striking the only blow against it, the ordinance revision permitting women bartenders was passed Tuesday by the council.

The vote was 8-1.

Ald. Grace Stern (3rd) said she did not think the new ordinance was right.

Three months of discussion by the council on the controversial issue was capped by the action. The federal "equal opportunities" bill and requests by city tavern operators gave rise to the legislation.

Tighter Controls

The new ordinance strikes any reference to female from the charter. Tighter controls will be applied to all applicants for bartender licenses under provisions of the new ordinance.

Applicants will be required to undergo a physical examination prior to being issued a permit. Also added to the law is the requirement for everyone outside the immediate family of the tavern owner to have a license.

This will eliminate the use of bartender helpers who did not need licenses.

Scout Leaders' Session Today at Clintonville

CLINTONVILLE — The North District Valley Council, Boy Scouts of America leaders round table will be at 7:30 p.m. today at the First Methodist Church.

Heading the program for the Cub Scouts will be Cub Pack 47 of Wittenberg led by Roger Hanson. The Boy Scout session will be directed by Ray McClone, assisted by Lowell Walker, scoutmaster of Troop 21, Clintonville.

Thursday and not Dec. 16 as reported earlier.

Advertising of bids on gasoline, fuel oil, a dump truck and a station wagon for the director of public works was authorized.

A license to sell intoxicating liquor and beer was granted to A. J. Van Den Wymelenberg. Van Den Wymelenberg will transfer the combination license to his bowling alley on Wolf River Avenue where he currently has a beer license. At one time he owned the combination license, but released it to Wilbur Bunkleman when he rented a building from Van Den Wymelenberg.

An ordinance annexing about 85 acres of land in the southeast section to the city was adopted. The land owned by Floyd Lyons was temporarily zoned as heavy industrial.

Students Work in Plant

School - Industry Program In Second Year at Brillion

BY JOAN COENEN

BRILLION — The overwhelming success of a program combining high school education with work in an industrial plant initiated last year at the Brillion Iron Works has prompted company officials to continue the endeavor.

BIW Foundry Division Manager Don Hepler got the idea from an article in the Wall Street Journal over a year ago explaining the work-study experience. He immediately contacted high school officials and the two have worked together since then to assure the success of the program.

Five senior boys—Lyle Clavers, Lee Wittmann, Ken Weber, Bob Williams and Ron Kuchenbecker—were selected last week to participate. They started Monday and will be working four hours a day during the late afternoon three days a week. A maximum of 12 hours per week is allowed with no weekend work.

Cannot Interfere Hours coincide with the individual school schedule because the job can in no way interfere with extra-curricular activities.

For example, if a boy is on a sports team as a junior, he is compelled to participate in that same sport as a senior if he wants to take part in the work program.

Plant advisers have been assigned to counsel the boys and to answer questions that may occur in the maintenance, inspection, shell molding and metallurgical lab departments where they will be working.

Boys are not allowed to work as machine operators until they are 18 years old. Fifty per cent of their earnings must be deposited in the BIW credit union, according to rules of the program. More can be saved if a boy wishes and all money saved can be withdrawn after high school graduation, Hepler said.

Guidance counselor Harry Drier described the boys selected as "Trustworthy, hard-working and sincere." They must maintain a C average or better in school or they are disqualified.

"Several minor problems involving the work program arose last year at school," Drier went on. "Mr. Hepler was here immediately to help us iron out the problem. This type of industry-school cooperation is very heartening," he said.

Parents of the young men involved in the program are briefed on the rules set up. BIW personnel talk to them before their sons start work and again after they "graduate."

Idea Snowballed

The idea has "snowballed" in the area. Foundries at Oshkosh, Berlin, Kaukauna, Waupun, Fond du Lac and Waupaca have incorporated similar programs.

Of the four boys who participated last year, two are now full-time employees at the foundry and two are attending college. The college students have indicated a desire for summer jobs at the BIW.

Drunkness Charge

WEYAUWEGA — Mrs. Joan Zeinert, 23, 202 W. Summer St., Weyauwega, forfeited a $44 bond to Waupaca Municipal Justice George Whalen Monday when she failed to answer a charge of drunkenness.

Chilton Council Calls Special Budget Session

CHILTON — A special budget planning session of the city council was tentatively set for 6:30 p.m., Thursday by the council Tuesday.

Holding up the city's budget plans has been the recently completed reassessment of real estate and personal property. The board of review completed its final hearings Tuesday. Now, new assessed valuation figures must be computed before a tax rate can be established.

City Clerk Arthur Pohland told aldermen the city had received $20,832 as its share of the 1965 income tax apportionment.

City Atty. William Engler Jr. was ordered to prepare a resolution authorizing the city advance for those wishing to make early payments. With the lack of a tax rate, property owners would have to estimate their payment. If they overpay, refunds would be made.

Invested $50,000
Arnold Weller, finance committee chairman, reported that $50,000 has been invested in U.S. treasury bills at an interest rate of 4.06 per cent. They are due Feb. 28.

Aldermen were reminded of the Public Service Commission hearing scheduled 9 a.m., Dec. 17 to determine whether an automatic warning device should be located at the Breed Street railroad crossing.

Walter Muehl, public works director reported that he has obtained written agreements from owners of property abutting the ditch running from Breed Street to the Manitowoc River permitting the city to widen the ditch to improve drainage.

Board Vacancy
The resignation of Mrs. Bernice Tesch has left a vacancy on the library board, Mayor Harry Thompson said. He asked for recommendations on a successor. Mrs. Tesch moved to New Orleans.

Engler will be asked to check on whether the city has an ordinance requiring permits for advertising signs. This has been standard procedure, but now several signs have been put up without permit.

Muehl reported that the city's new well located east of the city on County Trunk Y is now operating fully automatically.

Aldermen approved the hiring of Thomas Connors as full-time city hall custodian. Poor health has forced the resignation of William Hillman.

WEYAUWEGA — An ordinance restricting installation of sewer and water mains and service laterals after the ground becomes frozen was adopted Monday by the city council. Restrictions will be set by the Public Works Department.

Power Geer, part-time policeman, asked about the status of his present job since the city had advertised for a full-time policeman. The council told Geer several applications have been received for the position but no one has been hired yet.

Geer then handed in his application for the full-time position.

Applies for Post
Iver Oerter has applied for the position of city engineer. Oerter was an employee of Glass and Donaldson Engineers, Waupaca. The firm presently performs the city's engineering work. It was noted that Oerter is familiar with the city and the possibility of hiring him will be investigated.

NFO, Collective Bargaining Secure, Says Parley Delegate

Bear Creek Farmer Relates National Convention Highlights

NEW LONDON — Collective bargaining for agriculture is secure and the National Farmers Organization is secure, Larry Kruzicki, route 1, Bear Creek, said here Tuesday after attending the NFO convention in St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 1 and 2.

Outagamie County's 18 delegates to the convention made up a portion of the 10,000 voting representatives from 25 states. Kruzicki said the convention unveiled proof that the NFO marketing arrangements have netted an advantage to member farmers over and above the market improvements everywhere. NFO has accounted for $4 per hundred weight of the price rise in hogs and $2 per hundred weight of the price rise in cattle, he said. Kruzicki predicted similar rises in grain and dairy.

Orin Lee Staley, national president, was re-elected for his 11th term by acclamation. Staley said six of the 15 top processing plants in the nation were accepting meat from NFO under marketing arrangements.

Senators Attend
Highlighting the convention speeches by Rep. Paul Findley (Rep.-Ill.), Sen. Birch Bayh (Dem. Ind.) and Sen. Ralph Yarborough (Dem. Texas).

Staley told the convention that "we (NFO) have forced the issue to the point where many other organizations must now make a collective bargaining effort."

Staley said this would prove hard to do because other farm organizations had not incorporated the idea of collective bargaining in their organizational structure, have never developed a low cost marketing function as developed by the NFO during the past few years, and don't dare let their members decide organization direction.

Delegates from Outagamie County were Mr. and Mrs. Kruzicki, Mr. and Mrs. Ruel Robertson, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Olson, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Merrill, Mr. and Mrs. John Kochon, Mr. and Mrs. John Van Bostel, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Keester, Mr. and Mrs. Nick Kruzicki, Herbert Hooyman and Lawrence Young.

Judge Orders Mental Exams For Cornelius

Youth Charged in Oneida Fires Denied Change of Counsel

Richard Allen Cornelius, 19, Milwaukee, was ordered sent to Winnebago State Hospital for examination Tuesday after a third bid for change of attorneys was turned down by County Judge Urban P. Van Susteren.

Cornelius, a former rural West DePere resident charged with three counts of arson and one of criminal trespass in connection with fires that destroyed the Immaculate Conception Catholic Church and two barns in the Town of Oneida Oct. 31, will be in the state hospital for a period not to exceed 60 days, according to the court order Tuesday afternoon. Judge Van Susteren, assigned to the case after County Judge Gustave J. Keller disqualified himself last week, further ordered that the chief physician at the hospital make a report on Cornelius' mental condition and deliver that report to the clerk of courts when the Milwaukee man is released from the hospital.

Talked to Mother Cornelius' third request for substitution of attorney in his last three court appearances came after Judge Van Susteren called a short recess Tuesday to allow him to talk to the youth's mother.

Cornelius again maintained that he was within his rights to have the court appoint Atty. Allen Cain at county expense.

Judge Keller, who earlier found Cornelius to be indigent and entitled to counsel at county expense, on Nov. 22 turned down Cornelius' initial request for change of attorneys.

Judge Keller denied a second and similar bid on Nov. 26 and only last week the State Supreme Court, in an opinion requested by Cain, upheld the judge's denial for the change, saying that an indigent, although having the right to counsel at county expense, could not select that counsel.

Cites Decision

After Judge Van Susteren refused to substitute attorneys, Cornelius cited a Wisconsin Supreme Court case wherein the defendant allegedly was granted a substitution under similar circumstances.

Dist. Atty. Nick F. Schaefer then presented the judge with the letter received last week from the high court stating its refusal to issue an order to show cause against Judge Keller in regard to the change of attorneys.

Franchise Shelved For CATV

MENASHA — Lacking information on how to control a community antenna television system (CATV), the common council Monday indicated it will shelve an Appleton firm's franchise request for the time being.

The city clerk received a letter from a newly organized group of Appleton businessmen three weeks ago asking permission to set up a community antenna system in Menasha.

The group is not yet incorporated, but plans to do so soon under the name of Fox Cities Communications, the group's attorney, Franklin Nehs, said Monday. Two other principals in the organization are Bruce Purdy of Appleton Wire Works Corp. and John Barlow of Azco Inc.

In addition to applications in Neenah and Menasha and Appleton, the group has filed for a franchise in Kaukauna, Combined Locks, Little Chute and Kimberly.

Kappell Unconscious As He Entered Water, Expert Says

Testimony at Inquest Indicates Student's Body Wasn't Mutilated

OSHKOSH — Opening testimony in the coroner's inquest into the cause of death of Stephen Kappell today indicated that he was unconscious when he was placed in the water.

Dr. Helen Young, assistant pathologist at the Milwaukee County Medical Examiners Office who performed the autopsy on the 18-year-old Wisconsin State University-Oshkosh student whose body was found Oct. 16, floating in Lake Winnebago, said it was her opinion he was unconscious when he entered the water. She qualified this by saying, "He could have been conscious when he entered the water and rendered unconscious by striking something in the water." She said death was caused by drowning.

In explaining her findings, Dr.

Young said the body had not been mutilated but bruises were evident on the left side of the face and head and on the wrists. There had been no skull fracture.

She said a muck-like substance was found in the trachea and lungs.

In opening the inquest, Dist. Atty. Gerald Engeldinger explained to the six-man coroner's jury that the reason for the OSHKOSH — Billed as a debate on political party platform inquest is to attempt to determine by what means Kappell came to his death and to some degree of accuracy, when.

First Witness

The state's first witness, Harold Arentsen, an Oshkosh symphony conductor, told the jury he spotted the body at about 1 p.m. Oct. 16 while fishing in Miller's Bay in the northern section of Menominee Park near the breakwater.

Another witness William Kiser, 602 Wagoo St., testified that he had seen an object floating approximately 300 feet from where the body was found the day before. At the time he and his wife had thought it was a log, but after further thought they decided it was a body.

Oshkosh Fire Department Capt. Clifford Werner, said when the body was taken from the water, the hands were not bound together but strips of cloth were around each wrist, indicating they may have been bound together at one time. He explained that the knees and the ankles were bound with a large rock tied to the knee bindings.

forms by the two state party chairmen, Democrat Louis Hanson charged the Republicans had two platforms and Republican Ody J. Fish countered his Democrat opponent had not presented any platform that he could rebut.

The two state party chairmen spoke at the Wisconsin State University-Oshkosh Reeve Union Lounge on a program sponsored by the University's Young Republicans and Young Democrat groups.

Hanson charged the Knowles administration "was based on deceit" and "one of the phoniest administrations this state has ever seen."

Fish argued the Democrat Party platform of 1964 used derogatory adjectives every time in the 28 times it referred to its opponents while the Republicans referred to the Democratic Party four times in its platform, each time devoid of any adjectives.

60 Planks Adopted

Of the 82 planks in the Republican platform, there has been action on 60 of them, Fish stated, adding that there had been bipartisan support on some of these planks. He singled out many of the planks to which he was referring.

Hanson charged the Republicans in their convention adopted one platform which he said Knowles later rewrote and "rammed down their throats. Knowles took many Democratic Party platform planks in his revision," the Democratic Party chairman continued. Many of the planks in the second platform were not in the original, he said.

Fish replied the first platform was a broad statement of principles and the second was a listing of items for legislative action, not "rammed down their throats," but the work of 133 nominees and incumbents for state legislative posts and the five state constitutional officers.

Fish said he thought the meeting was to present each party's platform. "Hanson at no stage has presented the Democratic platform but has vilified the Republicans."

List Of Specifics

"It is not traditional for the party to have only one platform and for the statutory convention to always accept that written by the voluntary party convention. The Republicans in voluntary convention wrote a statement of purpose. The statutory convention set forth a list of specifics."

Fish charged the Democrats wanted partisan politics in the local municipalities offices with mayors and aldermen to be elected on party tickets.

Hanson contended the Republicans campaigned to cut spending and reduce taxes and then turned around and raised the taxes and adopted the biggest budget in the state's history. Fish answered the Republican campaign was to "Cut reckless spending" and that the Republicans never promised to cut spending and taxes.

Business Conditions

When Fish pointed to the successful business conditions in the state under the Republican administration, Hanson replied that success was the result of the economic policies fostered in Washington by President Johnson and his predecessor.

Where Fish called attention to the Kellett Committee report on government administration, Hanson replied that Nelson had a similar study and report but the Republican-controlled legislature would not put it into practice. He said the Democrats wanted to give Knowles the right to upgrade administrative procedures without legislative approval but the republican senate rejected the idea.

Hanson also asked Fish why the Republicans did not do anything about the most expensive form of government in the state—the local towns and cities and counties that spend 80 per cent of the taxes. "Why should there be all these town governments for only a handful of people in an area," he asked. He charged the Kellett report had not touched upon this "most expensive and most wasteful part of state government."

Grand Old Man Has Hard Time In Democracy

De Gaulle Runoff
Would Not be Forced In Dictatorship

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — What happens to the "grand old man" is one of the differences between a democratic society and a dictatorship of left or right. In a democratic society he generally has a bumpy time.

Last Sunday's blow to French President Charles de Gaulle's pride was just the latest example. His people, failing to give him enough votes to re-elect him, forced him into a run-off election later this month.

But in other democracies great postwar leaders were nudged hard enough to make them realize they had outlived their political usefulness.

The British did it to their beloved Sir Winston Churchill in 1955 when he was 80 and too feeble to do his job. The men closest to him urged him to quit as prime minister, and he did; although he lived 10 years after that.

Adenauer Forced Out

As chancellor of West Germany for 14 years, Konrad Adenauer had led his country from the ruins of war to bulging prosperity. His own party forced him out in 1963 when he was 87.

There's no danger of an old-timer freezing to his job in this country with its elections every four years and a two-term limit on the presidency.

In India one of the most important leaders of the 20th century seemed bound to stay in the saddle indefinitely, although India was a democracy, because no one like him was in sight and he had trained no one.

This was Jawaharlal Nehru, who had been prime minister since India got its independence from Britain in 1947. But he died in 1964 at 74.

Death of Gandhi

It was the death of his great friend, the man who had become India's patron saint, Mohandas Gandhi, which illustrated something else about democratic societies.

In them it seems easier for violent death to remove a leader, no matter how popular he is, while he is out moving among the public, than it is in a dictatorship.

This is what happened to Gandhi, shot to death in 1948 by a Hindu extremist who wanted no part of brotherly relations with the Moslems. Gandhi, then 78, had just finished a fast intended to soften Hindu-Moslem enmity.

The assassination of President John F. Kennedy is a prime example, too.

But the long life and unchallenged tenure of the dictators — or the leaders of a dictatorial regime of left or right — has plenty of examples.

Two Communists, Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia, now 73, and Red China's Mao Tse-tung, 72, still hold unchallenged leadership after decades of it. The picture is the same on the far right.

In Spain Francisco Franco, 73, and in Portugal, Antonio Salazar, 76, are undisturbed dictators since 1937. Salazar since 1932.

On Formosa Chiang Kai-shek retains control of the Nationalist Chinese, a society which can hardly be called democratic. He had been the decisive force on the mainland from the 1920s until 1949 when the Reds drove him to Formosa. There he stayed in charge as before, but on a smaller scale.

Penicillin Wrong Way To Attack Early Cold

BY JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.
Dear Dr. Molner: Our family has just recovered from a prolonged siege of the common cold which went through the usual symptoms — a heavy cough and eventually ear infection. At the latter stage, the doctor treated us with penicillin. He diagnosed the infection as a strong virus.

All of which prompts several questions: When is a cold a virus? When does it respond to antibiotics and wonder drugs? What progress is being made toward a cure and preventive? — J. B.

I have no doubt that it was a strong virus in the beginning, but when your doctor began using penicillin for the ear infection, some other germs, bacteria rather than virus, had climbed on the band wagon. Penicillin (as well as the other wonder drugs) is excellent in subduing bacteria. It doesn't control virus. That's why having "a shot of penicillin" is such a fruitless approach to an early cold.

Most and probably all colds are caused by virus or by closely related germs, and not by bacteria. Once the membranes are inflamed by the cold, bacteria can invade. This is what we call a secondary infection, and it is often considerably worse than the original cold.

Hence the time to use penicillin or any of the wonder drugs is when, or if, a secondary infection is starting its dirty work — and dirty work it can be if it spreads into the ear or lung.

As to progress in the cure of colds, I don't know of any. What we need is a drug which will be effective against viruses, and so far all efforts have been substantially in vain. A virus, although a germ, is a quite different and tinier organism, and behaves in a different manner.

Some preventive for colds is a more hopeful prospect, since vaccines can protect against certain viruses. Influenza (also caused by a group of viruses) now can be controlled excellently with flu vaccine, as can smallpox, polio and measles.

One great stumbling block is identifying the cold viruses, of which there are perhaps a hundred or so. Identifying the exact virus in an individual case is an intricate laboratory task, and since a single cold runs its course readily, there is no point in a sufferer going to the trouble of finding out which variety of cold he has. It's over before it can be identified.

However, the individual strains of virus have to be isolated and then raised in laboratory cultures before work can be started on turning them into vaccine.

How many varieties need to be included in a vaccine to make it effective? Twenty? Fifty? A hundred? Dr. Jonas Salk has said he believes that as many as necessary can be successfully blended into a single vaccine.

We may never eliminate the common cold, but I think there is good reason to hope that we will someday prevent many colds.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a terrible pain in my right hip, and down the fat part of my leg. I have used liniments but still have the pain. What can I do? — Mrs. M. D.

It sounds like sciatica — involvement of the sciatic nerve. In such a case liniment will not help. The nerve may be inflamed, or irritated, or pinched. Consult a doctor so he can identify the exact cause and prescribe treatment.

Mrs. M. L.: You are close to 50. Your hysterectomy was seven years ago. People at this age tend to put on weight even when they have not had a hysterectomy. When needed the operation is very helpful, but don't make it an excuse for other problems.

For facts about the total health of you and each member of your family, Dr. Joseph G. Molner's new book, "Stay Well Every Year Of Your Life," ($5.95) is now available at your book store, or Prentice-Hall, Englewood Cliffs, N. J.
